The Largest Down Retailer Store

Bought your pillows & comforters elsewhere? Guaranteed you overpaid!!!

CAVEAT EMPTOR (BUYER BEWARE)

Don't be misled by advertisements for European goose down comforters at supposedly "SALE PRICES". We'll show you that most of those ads do not represent good values at all. Just because these advertisements are from major departments stores - do not be fooled-all down is not alike.

The quality of goose down is measured in fill power (also known as loft). Fill Power is the amount of cubic inches one ounce of down will fill. Our 800 plus Siberian Goose Down will fill between 800 and 850 cubic inches of space. "The Company Store" catalog always lists the fill power of their goose down. Bring in their catalog and we'll generally save you 50% off their prices.

Goose Down Comforters are an investment, with proper care a fine quality comforter will last a life time. Our high quality 100% cotton shells, or tickings, are divided into baffle boxes. The baffle box has a mesh channel separating the top from the bottom of the comforter. The baffle allows the down to give you maximum loft without collecting in one section of the comforter. We do not cater to the consumer that is more interested in price than quality. Our most valuable asset is our customer. We will only sell a product that we believe to be the highest value at the best price. Cheap low quality down should fill garage cans not pillows and comforters. All our goose down pillows and comforters contain 100% goose down even though it is legal to combine 70% down and 30% feathers and label the item 100% goose down. Remember feathers are those things with quills, down is similar to tiny balls of cotton, absolutely no hard quill. Our goose down comforters and pillows are machine washable because they only contain down.

The larger the individual down cluster the higher the fill power. The higher the fill power the better the comforter will insulate thus providing more comfort to you. Since you are spending 1/3 of your life in bed it should be as luxurious as possible. - Why not?

Excessive Excess And You

It Is Disconcerting To Live With This Many People Who Are Rich Beyond Their Wildest Dreams

By Dan Rattiner

The wonderful thing about America is that it is the land of opportunity. Even if you are poor, you can work hard and make enough money to live. If you work even harder, and maybe smarter, you can become fairly rich. And if you work even smarter than that and have some luck, you might become very rich. Finally, in almost every town in America there is somebody who is not only very rich but who is rich beyond anyone's wildest dreams. He (or she) lives on the hill, has locked gates, many servants, antiques, a charitable foundation and an idiosyncrasy here and there. Maybe, at an advanced age, he (or she) chases young girls. Maybe he believes in witchcraft and there are witches living on the premises. He (or she) can afford it.

Somehow, I think there is a logic to all of this. We can relate to it. Do business in it. Raise our families in it. "Don't go to that house on the hill."

For as long as I can remember, the Hamptons have been a place where these rules have held sway. We've had our locals, our fishermen, our farmers, our summer people, our second homeowners and our millionaires. We've had artists and writers, surfers and environmentalists, our merchants and our black community. There have been squabbles between these groups and alliances have been formed and friendships made. Disputes have been amicably resolved. It's been an American experience, an American experience in one of the most beautiful places this country has to offer. And I've enjoyed it.

This summer, however, there has been a change. And for some time, without really being able to explain it, I've been telling people that it is something that has turned our values upside down. Though it remains beautiful, there is something well, just break down.

For example, an American who is smart and fairly well off can look over and see that parked in front of him is a $65,000 Mercedes SUV. He's driving a $38,000 Ford Expedition SUV. Not bad, he thinks, looking it up and down. The man who owns that must be pretty rich. Maybe one day, I could afford one. Is it worth the difference?

Beyond the Mercedes, a $240,000 Lamborghini now pulls in. And then, beyond that, a $640,000 Rolls Royce Silver Shadow pulls in. Men and women from these cars get out and they walk by. They're not gonna look at the likes of you. What the hell is going on?

The problem is that we now have in the Hamptons an excess of excess... They're all over Main Street. They're taking over. And there's no room for you.

disturbing about it. I think I finally figured it out.

The problem is, I think, that we now have too many people who are rich beyond their wildest dreams. It is one thing to have one person who breaks all the rules because where money talks, nobody walks. Where you have in a small area one thousand people rich beyond their wildest dreams competing with one another, the rules,

Street. And there's no room for you. This is creepy.

What follows is a list of normal behavior, rich people's behavior and behavior that is wildly excessive. The Hamptons does not deserve to have its values turned upside down. Steer clear of the wildly excessive. Keep sanity in the Hamptons.

A thousand dollars for two dinners? That's what Alec Baldwin and Kim Basinger paid for the privilege of eating at the Paradise Café in Sag Harbor. The price rose to this astronomic level when Baldwin and Basinger got into a bidding war with Chevy Chase and Jany Chase at the annual Bay Street Theatre fundraiser.

Robin Duke has been named U.S. Ambassador to Norway and Carl Spielvogel and Carl Spielvogel U.S. ambassador to the Slovak Republic. This makes four U.S. ambassadors all living within a mile off one another in Southampton. The others are Peter Tufo, who is our envoy to Budapest and Felix Rohatyn, ambassador to France.

* * *

Paul McCartney has paid $677,000 for a little one bedroom house on an acre opposite the South Fork Country Club in Amagansett. It is pretty far from the ocean and pretty secluded but adjacent to the mansion where he and his late wife Linda used to spend summers. Real estate agents say McCartney spent about triple what the property is worth. But he can afford it and it may hold sentimental value for him.

* * *

John and Margo Catsimatidis of Quogue and Manhattan will be hosting Bill and Hillary Clinton at their Fifth Avenue apartment Thursday for cocktails and dinner. Dinner is $25,000 a couple. Why that's even more than the price paid to have dinner at The Paradise.

* * *

A cocktail party to benefit the maintenance fund of the Hearst Castle in California will be held at the home — also known as the Castle — of Marina and Francesco Galesi on Meadow Lane on Friday, August 18. Among those attending will be Ann Randolph Hearst, George Plimpton, and Princess Yasmin Aga Kahn.

* * *

Bill Clinton umpired the annual Artists-Writers softball game in East Hampton a dozen years ago. Maybe we can get Hillary to do the same this year. Among those scheduled to play this Saturday, August, 19 are Roy Scheider, Bill Beutel, Ed Burns and Rick Leventhal.

* * *

Al Gore was in the Hamptons last week and he stayed Saturday night at the Latch, owned by Marta and Martin White. On Sunday he lunched at the home of Barbara Lee Diamondstein and ambassador Carl Spielvogel. Among the guests were Bernnard Schwartz, Leon Black, Edward Albee, Ross Bleckner, Vera Wang, Charles Rangel, Randy Weingarten, Ken Lipper and

DINING OUT

BOOKSTORE-RESTAURANT alliances are so common that many people start to salivate like Pavlov's dogs whenever they crack open a new book. Often these eateries are cappuccino and pastry spots. The Paradise Cafe in the BookHampton building in Sag Harbor is an entirely different genre.

The newcomer is a full-fledged restaurant serving breakfast, lunch and dinner with stylish food prepared by Stephen Putnam, a James Beard award-winning chef. The cafe is situated in the 100-year-old Paradise building on Main Street. For the last 50 years businesses here have used the Paradise name, most recently the Paradise Diner and an ice cream parlor before that.

Patrons enter by way of the book shop, walk through a barroom with an impressive copper-topped bar and enter a long, narrow, spare dining room. Framed sepia photographs of early Long Island nautical scenes dot the walls.

One of the best openers is the grilled Paradise flat bread with either a Parmesan aioli topper or one that resembles bruschetta with plum tomatoes, basil and goat cheese. (A combination plate is available.) Vying with the flat breads for best appetizer honors was a special salad with roasted yellow and red baby beets surrounding a nest of arugula enhanced by chunks of goat cheese and sauteed Vidalia onions.

A tricolored salad with dried Bing cherries, pine nuts and goat cheese truffles (fried balls of cheese) tossed in a balsamic vinaigrette was too sweet for my taste but had its champions. The field green salad in a sherry-shallot vinaigrette holds a few surprises: a mound of white bean salad and another of croutons.

Other good bets are the clean, fresh-tasting gazpacho, thick with pureed vegetables, and the steamed mussels in a very tasty Dijon-country ham broth. The surprise hit of one meal was the crispy fried calamari. The tender, crunchy ringlets shared the plate with romaine-radicchio slaw, the first cousin of a chopped salad, enlivened by a watermelon-miso emulsion.

One of the platters justifiably turning heads in the dining room is the eight-ounce hamburger ($14) cooked precisely to order, topped with crisp pancetta bacon and Gorgonzola cheese and mated with a mountain of thinly cut, skins-on French fries.

Two other scene stealers are the lightly sauteed sea bass perched atop a calamata olive couscous with a tomato fondue in a saffron broth, and the Moroccan glazed shrimp with roasted eggplant whipped potatoes. Ginger-crusted salmon with salsify, melted leeks and crisp lotus chips and spice-rubbed tuna atop a soba noodle cake with a soy-honey-vinegar sauce also made waves.

There are no duds among the desserts. The lavender creme brulee makes a grand entrance in what looks like a lidded glass candy dish. The chocolate obsession translates to a molten-center cupcake crowned with double chocolate ice cream and bourbon-chocolate sauce. Just as appealing was a warm apple tart topped with a ball of cinnamon ice cream rolled in walnuts with a drizzle of applejack caramel. Even the cooke plate is worthy: an assortment of homemade treats including chewy brownies and fun-to-eat Oreo-style sandwich cookies.

Secrets to Tiger's Success

Concentration

"When I'm playing, I don't think about the crowd, the competition or the money. My father taught me how to play in a zone. I just concentrate on making each shot."

Swing

"Even after winning the Masters, I wasn't happy with my swing. So I worked with my golf instructor Butch Harmon who showed me a whole new technique. It's really helped elevate my game."

Vision

"I thought a lot about laser eye surgery but didn't want to take risks. So, I went to TLC Laser Eye Centers. TLC doctors have by far the best reputation. Thanks to their expertise, my vision is now better than 20/20. And the ball, the hole, and everything seems bigger."

Heart

"I don't know if you call it heart, but I have this unquenchable desire to win. That's why I play golf. I love competition. I just want to be the best player I can be."

The Long Island Rail Road is making major track improvements. Most branches will be affected.

Through Sunday, August 13

The extensive track rehabilitation program begun in 1997 continues on the Main Line west of Jamaica Station. Service is being affected as follows:

■ Hunterspoint Ave. Service

- ◆ Most Hunterspoint Ave. trains are being diverted to/from Long Island City.
- ◆ At Long Island City, you may transfer to/from the 7 subway at the Vernon-Jackson Station, two blocks north.
- ◆ You may also transfer to the New York Waterway ferry service at Long Island City.

■ Main Line Service

- ◆ Six AM and three PM trains are being cancelled or combined on the Babylon, Far Rockaway, Hempstead, and Long Beach branches.
- ◆ Other trains are adding stops.
- ◆ Service remains the same to Kew Gardens, Forest Hills, and Woodside. However, departure times may change slightly. There is also one less AM peak train stopping at Woodside.

- ◆ During the week of August 7-11, there will be temporary platforms at Kew Gardens, Forest Hills, and Woodside.
- ◆ If you work in lower Manhattan, you can travel to the Flatbush Ave. Terminal and transfer there for Manhattan-bound subways.

■ Information Services

- ◆ Timetables dated July 15 include all Main Line changes.
- ◆ We urge all customers to pick up special timetables, brochures, or flyers outlining travel alternatives. Also, listen for Public Address announcements for more up-to-date information.

For more information, call the LIRR at 718-217-LIRR (NYC), 516-822-LIRR (Nassau), or 631-231-LIRR (Suffolk).
For NYC Transit, call 718-330-1234. And for New York Waterway, call 1-800-53-FERRY.

GREAT UNSUNG HEROES OF BORDEAUX

CARSIN 1998

(Premieres Cotes de Bordeaux)

BOTTLE CASE

10.95 131.40

Juha Beglund purchased this somewhat forgotten vineyard in 1990. Refurbishing the winery and vines soon became his passion and today his efforts are well reflected in the high quality wine of this wine. Full flavored with rich, ripe fruit. (4816)

BRIAND 1996 (Bordeaux Supérieur)

8.95 107.40

Soft and delicately fruity with ripe cassis fruit and generous flavors. Fertile clay-limestone and sandy soil yield a wonderful wine here. (4813)

GARDOUT 1998

(Premieres Cotes de Blaye)

9.49 113.88

One of the oldest properties of the region, Chateau Gardout has been in the Revalaire family for 4 generations. Made from 75% Merlot, this 1998 is smooth and supple with a soft, ripe berry character, cocoa nuances and supple tannins. (4811)

JOUANIN 1996 (Cotes de Castillon)

9.95 119.40

Located along the right bank of the Dordogne River, the Cotes de Castillon produces a pleasing wine that offers immediate charm due to its high proportion of Merlot. (4801)

MAISON-NEUVE 1996

(Montagne-St.-Emilion)

10.95 131.40

A superb combination of 60% Merlot, 30% Cabernet-Sauvignon and 10% Cabernet Franc, this 1996 combines uncommon backbone with a framboise scented, richly textured and agreeable style. (4805)

PEYRAUD 1996 (Premieres Cotes de Blaye)

8.95 107.40

Powerful and full, the wines from this small estate offer great value in Bordeaux excellence and have become one of our most popular Bordeaux. (4807)

ROC DE GRIMON 1996 (Cotes Castillon)

8.95 107.40

From one of Bordeaux's oldest winemaking regions, this vineyard sits on lush, fertile soil and produces supple, deliciously fruity wines. (4800)

ROLAND LA GARDE 1998

(Premieres Cotes de Blaye)

9.49 113.88

This is a warm, fruit laden wine that displays dense, concentrated flavors which is quite uncommon for the region and a direct result of late harvesting. Healthy, balanced tannins ensure long aging in the bottle. (4815)

ROUSTAING 1998 (Bordeaux)

8.95 107.40

This is a very old estate and still has a priory wall and window from the Middle Ages that is incorporated into the cellar. Very claret-like in style with a predominance of red berry fruit aromas and flavors, this 1998 is ripe and full bodied with a superb balance. (4803)

THEBOT 1996 (Bordeaux)

8.49 101.88

A delightful full-bodied red with vibrant fruit and a touch of spice. (4812)

DE VERDUN 1998 (Medoc)

10.49 125.88

This blend of Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot displays plenty of sweet strawberry fruit with a ripe texture and mouthfilling flavors. Delicious now, it will continue to thrive for many years. (4817)

VIEUX CHATEAU LANDON

1996 (Medoc)

14.95 179.40

A large proportion of Cabernet Sauvignon gives a classic structure to this wine. Aged in oak for a full year, it displays good body, intense cassis fruit and great harmony. (4814)

GOING TO A RESTAURANT

NORMAL: Invite family and friends. Make a reservation. Eat family style. Everybody drink, tell stories and have a great time.

RICH: Invite rich business associates, make reservations at an expensive four star restaurant, look around to see who else is there, eat a fabulous dinner. Pay by credit card.

EXCESSIVE: On a whim, call the owner and buy the restaurant. Go there and throw everybody eating there out. Have the chef make everything on the menu. Eat a bite of this and a bite of that. After the meal, sell the restaurant at a profit. Give the item to a New York gossip columnist.

BUYING A HOUSE

NORMAL: Buy a three bedroom, two bath house.

Fix up the basement for a guest room. Furnish it yourself.

RICH: Buy a six bedroom house built around 1900 that has a swings on the front porch, and a lot of lawns. Put in a pool and a tennis court. Hire a decorator to furnish it.

EXCESSIVE: Buy a 60 acre farm, kick off the farmer, clear off the topsoil, bring in sod and exotic trees from all over the world, put down sod, fence in the whole place, hire three shifts of guards to patrol the perimeter and build a house twice the size of the White House with 35 bedrooms. Give this as an item to a New York gossip columnist.

COMING OUT TO THE HAMPTONS

NORMAL: Get your car out of the parking garage and drive out here. Or take the Jitney and get met by friends.

RICH: Come out by seaplane, helicopter or air charter. Or hire a limousine. Have your houseman meet you at the airport or marina and drive you home.

EXCESS: Buy a charter airline and take it private. It's for you and your friends. On call 24 hours. Give this as an item to a New York gossip columnist.

GOING SHOPPING DOWNTOWN

NORMAL: Get in your car, drive downtown and find a parking space. Shop. Drive home.

RICH: Have your driver drop you in town, shop, call driver on cell phone and tell him to pick you up and take you home, then go to the various stores and pick up what you have set aside and bring it home.

SUPER RICH: Get in your limo, drive it downtown and take up three parking spaces after getting your bodyguards, who have been following your driver in a second limo, to shoo off those parked in the spaces you want. Post the bodyguards, with arms folded, at each of the four fenders. Shop. Go home. Phone in the item to one of the New York Gossips.

HOLDING A PARTY

NORMAL: Get wine, beer, a cook, some people to clean up, put some music on the stereo, call your friends and have fun.

RICH: Hire a party planner, a decorator, send out invitations, erect a tent, hire a band, a caterer, put down a dance floor and have fun.

EXCESS: Call up an agency in New York that sends out girls, hire two dozen, have them delivered by limo, engage trapeze artists and strippers, three bands, stuff to put up your nose, and a few thousand friends. Hire party security people to be not only at the party but at every intersection within a three block radius, openly carrying guns. When guests arrive, tell them they are not on the list. Call the party in as an item to a New York gossip.

PUTTING IN A GARDEN

NORMAL: Go to a garden center, buy flowers and plants, peat moss and fertilizer, bring it home and plant your garden. Water daily.

RICH: Hire a gardener with the best reputation in the area to put in a garden at your house for $30,000. Tell him you want it in before the summer season begins, which is next week. Hold him to it.

EXCESS: Hire away the best gardener in the area by paying him $150,000 to put the garden he'd planned to put in at the neighbor's house for $30,000 at your house. Tell a New York Gossip this story.

WATCHING A MOVIE AT HOME

NORMAL: Go to the video store, rent a VCR, take it home, watch it.

RICH: Build a media room, rent a DVD, invite friends over, have the houseman operate the equipment, watch the movie.

EXCESS: Build a private screening room, fly in the stars, the director and producer, have them give commentary before and after the movie, refuse to invite anybody over. Tell a New York gossip.

* * *

Do your part. Save the Hamptons. Be rich within reason. Give money to the poor. If you have too much, found a school, a museum or donate enough to get a hospital named after you.

Now We Are Racing At A Speed Faster Than Light Into The 21st Century

By Dan Rattiner

There have been three big giant steps forward in the world of physics in the last three months. The first occurred on eastern Long Island where, at the Brookhaven National Lab scientists succeeded in re-creating the Big Bang, the initial explosion that created the universe. This was on June 12.

I know this date exactly because, beginning in May I started to worry about it. The lab is not far from where I live. They announced ahead of time they were going to try this. What if something went wrong? Like they created a whole new universe there just west of Riverhead? The day came, they did it and the day went. It went fine. I think.

The second big giant step came in late June when they figured out the human genome. It was a series of twisty things with little colored blobs in the middle. And there were six billion of them and these two men from different organizations had counted them although one had apparently counted more than the other but was being really nice about sharing the honor. Knowing this, people could live forever. Or until they got hit by a truck.

Then, just last week, scientists at the NEC Research Institute in Princeton fired a beam of light into a chamber filled with gas, and the lightbeam came out the other side before it entered. In fact, the beam was 20 yards down the road before it entered, something which the scientists said was the equivalent of a train arriving in Penn Station 30 hours before it left Philadelphia. They had gotten something to exceed the speed of light. Or had gotten light to flow backwards. Or something.

To be honest, I think this is an amazing way to start the new millennium. It is, certainly, more amazing than I had anticipated. Personally, I thought, not much would happen to kick off the new millennium. There had been so many disappointments in the last half of the twentieth century. The discovery that manufacturing creates super pollution. That nuclear power plants can explode. That interplanetary travel is not in the Island actually DID create a new universe. It's just that its still very small and though growing might take a year or two to be big enough for us to inhabit, something that will become necessary after everybody born starts living almost forever and we start crowding each other off the planet.

I sometimes listen to my mother, who was born in 1912, talk about what it was like when she was a little girl in Brooklyn. Refrigeration was accomplished by buying a big chunk of ice and putting it into an ice box in the kitchen along with the food. Most local trips were accomplished by trolley or wagons pulled by horses. Many streets were dirt and mud. You cleaned clothes with washboards, scrubbrushes and plenty of hot water.

Her dad, as a surprise present to her mom, had all the gas fixtures in the house removed and replaced with electric lights. Trouble was the power line had not yet been strung from down the street. Surprise! They had to live by lanternlight for two months.

As for the future, my fondest hope is that they figure out how to make real the "beaming" abilities thought up by the makers of Star Trek. I'm talking about where people's molecules disassemble in one plastic tube and reassemble in another plastic tube a few million miles away. Or a hundred miles away. We could visit Aunt Sadie. Whether she likes it or not. We could bulldoze up all the roads. Think of the auto accidents and associated carnage that wouldn't happen.

I'm waiting.

cards in spite of an early burst of enthusiasm. That the men who claimed they had created cold fusion energy in Utah were a bunch of idiots. That there are suddenly new diseases. That the planet is warming and there's trouble ahead.

So here we are and now there is all this astonishing news. Isaac Newton is sitting under a tree, rubs his head and goes ouch, and then the apple falls. And we, in our time machine, are there.

Dinner With The Mayor

Ehud Olmert, Mayor Of Jerusalem, In Westhampton, Talks About History, The Arabs And The Jews

By Dan Rattiner

The mayor of Jerusalem, Ehud Olmert, was in town over the weekend and I had the occasion to talk with him at a dinner party given by Rabbi and Mrs. Mark Schneier in Westhampton Beach on Friday night. Olmert is a tall man, about 6'1," and at fifty seems in excellent physical condition. He talks seriously about what he sees going on in Israel and Jerusalem, and many people feel he's in line to become the next Prime Minister of the country.

As dinner was being prepared in the kitchen, we stood around in the living room, drinks in our hands, talking for a while. Rabbi Schneier introduced me to Mr. Olmert, told him what I do, which is write this newspaper, and I told Mr. Olmert that I had never been to Israel, probably a very bad start for a conversation, but that I had really only one question to ask, and that was, how could there be such a sea change in the Israelis' relationship with the Palestinians? Up until about ten years ago, it seemed the Israelis were very uninterested in dealing with the Palestinians. They knew that in a war they could easily crush them, and their main focus was seeing to it that the families of the Jews who had suffered the Holocaust so terribly only a generation before had a safe haven they could call their own as a Jewish state.

"I have a cousin, now a retired professor at the University of Pennsylvania, who was a freedom fighter in the Haganah during the mid 1940s when the Jewish state was declared," I told him. "He was of the opinion that if the Jews ever negotiated with the Arabs, Israel would become a democracy and would no longer be a viable entity as a guaranteed safe haven for Jews. Now it seems in the last ten years that the Israeli government had thing we do, so we are trying to negotiate our border. By the way, what is your cousin's name?"

"Sonny Klausner," I told him. Olmert thought about it, then shrugged. "I don't know him," he said.

"The other thing I wanted to ask you," I said, "is about Jerusalem. Now Barak and Arafat are talking about expanding the borders of the city and lopping off the eastern end which has never been a part of Jerusalem before, and making that the capital for the Palestinians."

"My answer is that I don't think Jerusalem can be divided," Mr. Olmert said. "And I ought to know. As mayor, I am right in the middle of it. The districts are all mixed up, kind of one on top of another, so you go through a block that's an Arab street and another block which is a Jewish street and another block that is a Christian street. It would be come around and is doing just that."

"It's not the Israelis who have come around," Mr. Olmert said, "It's the Palestinians. We have always wanted them to have their own state, which would be side by side with ours. We will always remain a country for the Jewish people, and our desire is that there should always be a place for the Palestinian people. Now they have renounced their state of war with us and they want the same ungovernable."

"Then what do you think will work?"

"Well, I know what my opinion is," he said. "And that is that the city should remain under Jewish control and the Arabs should have a capital somewhere else."

"Like where?" I asked. "Nazareth?"

"Nazareth is right in the center of Israel," Olmert said.

"Well, as I said, I haven't been there," I said.

"Ramulah, perhaps. Is the current major city for administration on the West Bank. But as I said, that's just my opinion."

During dinner I sat next to Elat Weizman, who grew up in Israel but six years ago moved here to America. He lives on Long Island and runs a construction business in Manorville, in Yaphank. I learned more about Olmert. He is a member of the Likud Party, the conservative, traditional party that has close ties to Orthodox Jewry. He was appointed by Benjamin Netanyahu, who for three years was the Prime Minister of Israel. He took a cautious, go-slow approach to the peace talks.

Netanyahu a year ago was defeated by Ahad Barak, a former Israeli general, now a liberal, who has declared his desire to make peace as quickly as possible. Netanyahu may soon depart as head of the Likud Party. Olmert seems in line to take over.

"Barak is the worst thing to have happened to Israel," Weizman said over dessert. "Netanyahu may have been a conservative, but he was a politician and a good tactician. You have to hold back a little of this, and offer a little of that when you're in the middle of a long negotiation. What has Barak done? He knows the rules and regulations of the army. That's his training. There's a danger he could give away the store."

"What do you think the solution to the Jerusalem problem is?" I asked him.

"Why couldn't they make Jerusalem like the Vatican?" he said. "Have it be its own city-state with its own government. Then it would be neither Jewish nor Arab. Then it would be open to everybody." He pushed back in his chair.

"Where are you going?" asked his wife.

"I am going to suggest that to the mayor," Weizman said, standing up.

"I'm coming with you," I said. "Please ask him in English."

The dinner had been served buffet-style, and people were sitting at various cafe tables around the living room. We walked over to where Olmert was sitting. He was in the middle of a discussion with one of the other people at his table, but he stopped when Weizman approached. Weizman apologized for interrupting then made his suggestion. "What do you think?" he asked.

"The problem is not between the Jews and the Arabs in the city," Olmert said. "It's between the Jews and the Jews. The Orthodox Jews are by far in the majority. What do you think they would think of this? It wouldn't be better than what they have now."

"Nothing would be better than what they have now. They've already got everything."

"That's right," Olmert told us. "They're not going to give this up."

After dinner, I gave Mr. Olmert a copy of Dan's Papers. I opened it at random. It opened out to an article I had written about dirigibles in the Empire State Building in the 1930s.

"Some of it's kind of funny," I told him. I turned to another article. "But there's serious stuff in it, too."

Mr. Olmert smiled. "Thank you very much," he said. "I'll read it later tonight."

The evening was ending. I walked over to Rabbi Schneier and shook his hand and thanked him for inviting me. I said good-bye to his wife Toby and headed out to my car. We had tried, it seemed to me, to solve the problems of the Middle East, but it's not so easy to do in just one night. •

At Dan's Kite Fly

Strong Winds Lead To Tangles, Crashes And Controversy At Sagaponack Kite Event

By Dan Rattiner

Twenty-eight years ago, Richard Nixon was President, our young men were going off to die in a senseless war in Vietnam, and the country was being torn apart by its police and its youth, who fought one another with tear gas, billyclubs and riot gear on one side and pranks, demonstrations and drugs on the other. It was not a good time.

Here in the Hamptons at the time, it seemed to me, as editor of Dan's Papers, that it might be a good thing for everybody, grown ups as well as kids, to just go down to the beach and fly some kites. And so we did. About 100 people attended, there were prizes for the most imaginative, participation certificates for those who did not get prizes and a string quartet, in full formal gear, at the back of the beach, who sat on folding chairs and serenaded the kite fliers with Mozart.

Some of the people who were little children back then at that first kite fly were back on the Sagaponack Beach last Sunday afternoon with their own children, and there were little five year old girls in face paint, eight year olds who, seven years earlier had won a prize for being the youngest flier, and there were all sorts of amusements and gifts given out at what would have been a door if we had had a door, but was just a place to pause for a moment along a footpath where we had set up a table. We had free Groucho

Marx glasses, noses and moustaches to give away, we had lollipops, and we had Archie Comic Books. The comic books, by the way, were being handed out by Michael and Nancy Silberkleit, the owners of the Archie Comics, who live in East Hampton. (Two weeks ago, in a more serious event, they had 500 people, including Hillary Clinton, for lunch at their house. But that was that week.)

Cathie had decided, this year she would have, as judges, the four major candidates running for office.

Also attending was a string duet, two men sitting on folding chairs playing Haydn violin concertos, also a tattoo artist who would give whoever walked into their tent a tattoo (removeable), and a big red bulb nosed clown by the name of Banjo Jack. And then, of course, there were the parents and the kids, and the serious entrants and the just for fun entrants, and this strong wind which tangled many of the hundreds of kites flying in the air, leading to tears and sniffling.

"We have another kite," father said hopefully.

"I want THIS kite," the four year old said, holding up the remains of the mid-air collision.

"There's a lesson to be learned from this," father said.

"What?"

"Something to do with victory and defeat."

"What?"

"Dashed hopes."

"I want my kite."

Cat Squires, who had organized the event this year, asked me about Banjo Jack.

"Did you invite him?" she asked.

"No."

Banjo Jack was showing three laughing children how he could make the hat on his head bigger and smaller.

"I think he just showed up," Cat said.

"I think he did. And he's wonderful."

With the brisk wind, a warm sun, about 250 fliers (many in costumes), and a big surf, it was an absolutely wonderful day to have a kite fly. The Haydn was the background music. This was a movie.

Kids and their parents, bringing blankets, chairs and homemade kites under their arms, all stopped at our little table by the "door."

"Is there an admission fee?"

"No."

"Do we have to register?"

"No."

"Is there a charity involved?"

Kite

"Nope."

"How do we go about this?"

"Put your kite in the air. We have four judges walking around who will be awarding twenty four prizes. That's it."

"What's the catch?"

"Isn't one."

Cathie had decided, this year, that she would have, as judges, the four major candidates running for office. She'd get an Al Gore, a Hillary Clinton, a George Bush and a Rick Lazio.

It was a tall order and she didn't quite pull it off. We did have a guy named Rick. But his last name wasn't Lazio. There was an Al (Al Miller) and then there was a Christine as in Whitman but it was Christine Carroll. Finally there was Kasia Calzonetti and Michele Tennariello which by my count made it one more judge than there was supposed to be. Go figure.

One of the best kites at the fly this year was a magnificent three masted schooner kite. There was Stanley Cohen, who flew a styrofoam wiggle kite, and there were at least three kids who flew kites so high you couldn't see them any more.

"If you can't see it, you can't judge it."

"BUT IT'S UP THERE."

"Reel it in a bit."

As the day proceeded, the wind increased to about twenty knots. Broken kites began appearing at our table, brought in by adults trailing downcast children.

"Just put it with the rest under the table," I said. "It is the land of broken kites. Or the island that time forgot. Or something."

A few people sat down on the sand and tried to rig kites together from the broken parts. All failed.

In the end, a very serious kite hobbyist named James R. Hagen, from North Kingston, Rhode Island, walked away with the Grand Prize, three days and two nights, all expenses, at Gurney's Inn in Montauk.

"The kite that won," he told me, "was that flying raptor kite." He pointed to it, still flying. "It's

No Longer Stranded

The Atlantis Aquarium Revitalizes A Town Almost Given Up For Dead

By Ben Amato

The legend of Atlantis has it being swallowed by the sea. It took the efforts of builders Joe Petrocelli and Jim Bissett to raise a new Atlantis, the exciting new aquarium that sits at the east end of downtown Riverhead. The old Atlantis was said to be the lone shinning light on a darkened world, but the glow from this Atlantis is being shared with the rest of old Riverhead town.

"Three thousand people a day, rain or shine. We're a destination on a cool day," said partner Joe Petrocelli. "Ninety percent of our exhibits are indoors."

"There's families with baby carriages walking up and down Main Street. This is what we've been waiting for," said Kim Durham, the marine life stranding program director of the Riverhead Foundation for Marine Research and Preservation. The Foundation's educational programs, laboratory facilities, marine mammal and sea turtle hospital is housed at the Atlantis Aquarium. "People park within the town and need to walk through."

Walking through Riverhead town with a local foot patrolman, he confided that, "My father has lived his whole life here and he never saw anything like this. Sure, there's a traffic and parking problem, but this is good for the town, good for Main Street."

The empty stores that once were on his beat, now show signs of renovation and new businesses. The Vision Theater is a company of theatrical performers coming into the downtown area. Tweet's restaurant and Buffalo Bar will be its neighbors, and further east is a brand new jewelry store about to open. "There's two new ice cream parlors coming in." From the look on this officer's face, you could tell those stores will be well protected and visited often.

Paola DiGiorgi was busy in Village Pizza, serving customers Linda and James O'Connor. They were out from Manhattan, visited the aquarium and now were munching down several slices. "A lot of people take the walk. Business is a lot better and lots

"The aquarium has added traffic, more businesses, but not everybody realizes what's in this town. Some are complaining about the parking but they're bringing in tourists. You can't have it both ways." Her store is a day tripper's dream; candy, ice cream, trinkets, tables for coffee and snacks. "I suggested to the Chamber of Commerce that they put up a kiosk, an information board. We need to think more in terms of a cohesive theme for downtown. Right now we're not fish nor fowl, tourist or financial or a social services hub. That makes for a problem."

"People that walk by, there's great foot traffic and that's what this town needed," said Frank Mayer, the owner of the Peconic Queen and Peconic River Lady. These paddlewheelers reside at Riverhead Landing, part of the Riverhead Business Improvement District. His ships sail down the river into Flanders Bay and beyond. "Every cruise there's good food, lunch, brunch and dinner. We go out to Greenport, Sag Harbor, Cedar Point."

Frank fidgeted behind his desk, on the second floor of his floating, houseboat office. The desk was covered with paperwork, reports and cold, twice reheated pizza, loaded with olives. He was too busy to put it in the microwave again. "We slugged it out (referring to the lean years) and hopefully, it's payback time. The walkup business is great. People come up, they hear we're going to Greenport tomorrow, an all day trip and they sign on."

of kids, too." Paola said. "They come in her with those (educational) packets and they read. It's fun."

"It's a great day trip," added James, a lawyer in the city, "and the pizza is good."

Jerry and Leah, a middle aged couple strolling down Main Street, said they enjoyed the aquarium. They were taking the walk "to see what's going on. The revitalization."

Sherry Coverdale has watched the change over the last few years from the window of her specialty store, Ralph Rotten's Fudge & Gourmet Shoppe.

Stranded

He pointed over to the east, towards the aquarium. "I've been friends with Jimmy (Jim Bissett, co-owner of Atlantis) and he's a good businessman, he's using his head. I see people from the west, Baldwin, Merrick, Freeport. The aquarium brings them in."

Frank gobbled down a huge bite of the pizza and pointed west. "A lot of things are going to happen. There's the Railroad Museum. I've donated a lot of services down there." Just north of the waterfront, the Railroad Museum of Long Island just opened and with that new attraction in downtown Riverhead, he saw new opportunities. "I want them to run a train out to Greenport, and then passengers can come back by boat, with food, great sunsets. I've been waiting for all of this," he said with this great smile on his face.

Riverhead town officials have tried new ways to encourage growth. The Peconic River Arts District wants to use the second and third floor of existing downtown commercial space as cultural facilities and venues, along with affordable housing, for artists and their studios. Outside of town, further west, is the Enterprise Park at Calverton. This is a Riverhead Economic Development Zone which will have access to New York State benefits and tax relief, making it a prime center for new development. Plans call for an industrial park, a theme attraction area, sports park and commercial recreational areas and 940 acres of proposed open space, including 423 acres in the Pine Barrens core area. Community Housing Innovations is a not-for-profit corporation helping to rebuild homes and neighborhoods in the town. Town Supervisor Robert F. Kozakiewicz is helping distribute $4,000,000 in assistance to "help turn blighted areas into neighborhood homes. Riverhead is a family town and refurbishing our neighborhoods will only enhance the family atmosphere that has been a hallmark of the Town of Riverhead."

Kim Durham is the director of the Stranding Program. During its existence it has handled over 2,000 animals, "65 this year with a rehabilitation rate of 75%" she added with pride. "It's been

A Couple In Manorville Shelters 600 Farm Animals - And Asks For Some Help

By Jerry Cimisi

When Gay and Rich Devoe bought two acres in Manorville three years ago, they arrived from Patchogue with a few more animals than most people have. They had three horses, four cats and a parrot. In fact, they had made the move in order to live on the same property with their horses and have place to ride them.

"We had been boarding them at $125 per horse per month, and that was with us doing the work, cleaning their stalls, etc.," said Gay.

So the two acres in Manorville, bordered in part by woods, looked like a good deal to the DeVoes. And not long after they got there they purchased another four acres adjacent to them - and inherited a few more animals.

"It was a farm," said, Gay, "run by an old Italian farmer who lived in Westbury; where his wife could have her nice clean house and he could come out there two or three times a week and have his farm. The problem was, he wasn't taking care of the animals he had at all. They were in terrible condition when we took over the place. The stalls and pens were full of manure and obviously had not been cleaned very often. He was a man who kept his animals for enjoyment but would have no problem butchering them. We found the places on the farm where he would string the animals up and cut their throats."

The animals that came with the four acres were: twenty sheep, fourteen goats, eight deer, eleven chickens and some rabbits and turkeys - about fifty animals in all. The deer were not the common white-tailed deer that locals are used to seeing on the East End, but fallow deer, "a smaller, more domesticated deer," said Mrs. Devoe, "about half a pygmy goat and two potbellied pigs. But they were also (perhaps not surprisingly) getting a reputation for taking in farm animals. People began to bring goats to them, chickens, rabbits, farm animals or pets that the owners could not longer keep - or simply decided they did not want.

At first the DeVoes took on the animals for free, then began to charge a fee - $5 for a chicken, $50 for a sheep. "We have about sixty sheep," said Mrs. Devoe, "they seem to eat more than all the animals put together. We put them out in the back of the property about twice a month to keep the grass down, but you still have to buy a lot of feed for them."

Indeed, to feed the current menagerie at the farm the couple forks out about $3,500 a month with an additional $1,000 toward veterinary bills.

"When we take in a sheep, we ask $50 and a lot of people think that's too much, but that animal will cost us more than $50 in a short time."

At this point it should be mentioned that the DeVoes now have about 600 animals. About 350 are chickens. Their farm is called the Double D Bar Ranch - Double D for Richard (Dick) Devoe - and they are trying to run it as a nonprofit organization for abused or abandoned farm animals. Mrs. Devoe works as an administrative assistant for a company in Deer Park. "I come home," as she says, "take off my business clothes and feed the rabbits," while her husband Richard works with the animals throughout the day, typically from seven in the morning until nine the size of white-tailed deer."

The DeVoes were also taking on a few more animals. They got two more horses, three dogs,

Sanctuary

at night.

"The Double D could also be for Dicky Doolittle," said Mrs. Devoe. "It's as if he could talk to the animals, like Dr. Doolittle."

Three years ago, Mr. Devoe lost a longtime trucking job when the company he was working for went out of business. "He was fifty-eight at the time," said his wife, "and people didn't seem to want to hire someone his age, never mind that he can run circles around people half his age. You should see him lifting those fifty pound bags of feed and carrying bales of hay." So one can hardly say Mr. Devoe has retired.

A recent Newsday article on the DeVoes brought attention to their situation and about fifty animals have been adopted as a result (they had about 650 animals when the article came out). They would like to reduce the number of animals they care for, while continuing to operate as a sanctuary for farm animals.

Mrs. Devoe was appreciative of the Newsday piece, though she said there were a few inaccuracies, such as "I don't say 'Yup.' I felt the article sort of portrayed us as if we were hillbillies."

The article also went into the issue of what has come to be called "animal hoarding." In other words, a person or persons who gathers a large number of animals. The term "hoarding" lends itself to being connected to neurotic, compulsive behavior — in short, many so-called experts contend that people who gather a lot of animals have something wrong upstairs.

Mrs. Devoe said, that in terms of the "hoarding" issue, the Newsday piece contradicted itself. "The article showed a photograph of a sign we have

By Dan Rattiner

Hillary Rodham Clinton is a handsome woman in her mid fifties who has a bright smile, a steady, strong voice and a considerable intelligence. There is a no-nonsense way about her. And she feels very strongly about government and politics and what they can do.

"I have very strong feelings about health care, the disadvantaged, family and women's and children's rights," she said recently after a luncheon in Wainscott. "I am pro-choice. And I think that no one who takes the responsibility to work hard every day should have to raise their family in poverty."

Hillary, who is running for the Senate, has become a frequent visitor to the Hamptons. She makes speeches, attends luncheons and dinners and just this past Thursday was at Montauk, taking a tour of the Montauk Lighthouse.

"I love the East End of Long Island," she said. "We don't have a summer home out here. At least not yet. But since we moved to Chataqua up in Westchester, I find myself a frequent visitor to the East End, particularly the Hamptons. I stay with friends. Or I just come out for a few hours and then I'm off."

Hillary has a helicopter at her disposal. She is a very busy lady.

Hillary Clinton was born as Hillary Rodham, the daughter of a man who owned a small business in Park Ridge, Illinois. Her mother was a stay at home full time mom.

"My mother organized our daily lives," she said, speaking for herself and for her younger brother. "She fed us with devotion, imagination and great spirit. I learned from both my mother and my father the importance of families, how parents through their dedication enable their children to have a better life. I think that's the most important lesson I've ever learned."

Hillary went to Wellesley College, then on to Yale Law School, where she got her degree in 1973. At Yale, she met the man she would marry, Bill Clinton, a fellow law student who was from Hope, Arkansas. They married in 1975, and moved to Little Rock, Arkansas, the capitol. Hillary set up a law practice. And Bill got a job working for the Arkansas Democratic Committee.

It was with Bill that Hillary first came out to the Hamptons. It was in the late 1980s. Her husband had after many years in politics been elected governor, and Bill had been invited out to East Hampton to help publisher Dan Rattiner of Dan's Papers umpire the annual Artists Writers Softball Game. They stayed a short time. The Writers won, 7-3. Then they went back.

Who's Here:

Hillary Clinton First Lady

In the late 1990's, they began coming out here again. Bill had been elected President, and then by an even bigger margin a second time. But there were campaign debts to pay off and fundraisers to attend. Bill and Hillary stayed at the Steven Spielbergs on one weekend. On another, they stayed at the home of the Bruce Wassersteins. They ate lunch one day at the Turtle Crossing Restaurant because it serves a good southern barbecue. And they had dinner at the home of Alex Baldwin and Kim Basinger in Amagansett on another day. They also did a brief stop off at Babette's Restaurant on Newtown Lane in East Hampton. Barbara Layton, the owner, had been a very vocal supporter of Bill Clinton through the Monica Lewinsky mess. Hillary had been a big supporter of her husband too during that time.

By this time, Hillary had a thriving law practice in Little Rock. She was also on the boards of several successful corporations, including Wal-Mart and TCBY, also several not-for-profit organizations, including the Children's Defense Fund and the Center for Education and the Economy.

In the White House as First Lady, Hillary was given the responsibility, by her husband, of coming up with a national health plan for all Americans. She worked on it for almost a year. But when she presented it to the President, and he in turn recommended it to Congress, it was defeated. It was one of the few times Hillary Clinton has tasted defeat.

"When people ask me about health care reform, I tell them that I am disappointed we were not able to make more progress," she said. "Now I'm from the school of smaller steps. But I believe we must continue to make progress. It's still important that we increase access to quality health care for working families."

Along those lines, Hillary led her husband's efforts to get passage of the Children's Health Insurance Program, which provides health insurance for millions of children in working families. Hillary is also active for greater funding for breast cancer research and treatment for breast cancer, prostate and colon cancer, osteoporosis and juvenile diabetes. She is a strong supporter of the HMO Patient's Bill of Rights.

Hillary's husband Bill has been a strong supporter of all his wife's efforts. He has been quoted saying that his wife shows great courage, insight and determination in her run for the Senate. And many will recall that when he was running for the Presidency, he said that with he and Hillary, the American public would get two presidents, two for the price of one.

Hillary, who is campaigning across the state pretty much alone since her husband has to remain in Washington to watch over things and tidy up as he heads toward retirement, spends much of her time in the Hamptons alone, though she flies back to Washington as often as she can. On the other hand, she has many friends here and there seems to never be a dull moment. If she's not delivering speeches at synagogues in Westhampton Beach or East Hampton, climbing the historic Montauk Lighthouse's steps, or attending luncheons and cocktail parties, she's visiting child care centers or senior citizen's facilities in the Springs. It's a busy time.

"The issues people talk to me about – their concerns for their children's education, for health care, for a better future for their families – are the issues I've worked on all my life," Hillary said. • outside saying that we are trying to get people to take our animals. So we are not trying to hoard them."

But if the Devoes are indeed actively trying to have a good deal fewer than the 600 or so animals they currently care for, they are careful about whom they give their animals to. The sign outside the farm lists the types of animals available, and adds "For Pets Only."

The Devoes don't want any of their animals butchered. "Someone will come to the farm and say they want a goat. We ask what for. They might say, 'What do you mean, what for?' We say, 'For a pet or meat?' And if they react in a way such as, 'Oh, for a pet,' as if they are saying what they think we want to hear and if when we show them around the farm our impression doesn't change, we don't give them an animal. We would not let an animal walk off the property if it's going to be used for meat."

"The only time we ever broke our word to anyone was to a man who wanted to trade us two goats (one was pregnant, the other was a male) for three lambs. He said he wanted them for breeding. We gave him two lambs and were going to give him a third later. Well, we were heartbroken when we found out he had slaughtered the lambs. So we didn't give him the third lamb we had originally agreed to. Also, the pregnant goat he had given us had complications, she had to have a C-section and that cost us a lot of money."

The issue of butchering is one that touches the Devoes deeply. "I know that goes on in the world, I'm not going to stop it, but I don't want any of the animals I have to end up as meat."

By Joan Zandell

If you have seen an ad lately that has blown your socks off the wall, more than likely Ellis Verdi, the President of the hottest agency in town DEVITO/VERDI, was behind it. His passion is to create what he terms "classic advertising," a combination of strong strategic account management and very strong, creative advertising. "It's rare to have the two come together in the same shop. You might find a strong strategy company or a strong creative company." Verdi's goal was to create a shop where the two are well balanced. Verdi takes his inspiration from the advertising shops of the 60's - Doyle, Dane and Bernbach or Scaly/McCabe. "Their stuff was very smart, very clear and also incredibly memorable."

How did he meet his present partner Sal DeVito, the other half of the equation? "In one of the trade publications, Sal said that he was leaving his job and was thinking about doing something and was looking for a partner with brains and balls. And we got together and started chatting and just started working together. In the early days we did some great work. He taught at the School for Visual Arts and many of his students were some of the best young people in the business. We hired them and the agency started creating ads and we got noticed very quickly. SOLGAR Vitamins was some of our first work, as well as DAFFY'S. Some of those first ads propelled us forward. We just enjoyed working together. It's a strong and good partnership because it's got balance."

When DEVITO/VERDI began, they set out to touch a nerve. "We take risks because very often the greater risk is not taking the risk." They feel that there are good pragmatic reasons for doing the kind of work that they do. However, the ads that they have produced have not been done for the sake of creating controversy. Ellis Verdi simply feels that he is doing what it is his job to do. Getting attention for the product that he is selling.

Perhaps being smart about getting attention came out of the experience of growing up in New York City. Verdi is an only child who grew up on the Upper West Side and went to public schools. He says of his experience. "Growing up in New York wasn't easy and it was a great experience at the same time. It's a challenge because it tests your ability to be self-reliant. And in a positive way, it gave me a sense of understanding people and personalities and motivations, and how to get along. I went to a very tough High School, Brandeis High School on the Upper West Side. I was a very good student, and in a tough New York City High School good students tend to get a lot of teacher attention. And the teachers become your friends. I actually go back once a year - they have a program, Principal For A Day, to remember. I was a very good student, and interested in learning. I was always interested in politics, people and my environment."

Ellis Verdi is a man who is passionate about what he does and passionate about ideas. He loves the sorts of ideas that he terms are, "a mind-opener." A political science major in college, Verdi has brought his passion for people and ideas into his business. Among his clients are Hillary Clinton, and the American Civil Liberties Union. When I asked him how Hillary's Advertising Campaign would proceed now that Giuliani was out of the race, he laughed and said that "it's an interesting thing. And of course a new candidate brings new challenges."

Who's Here:

Ellis Verdi Ad Man

Representing the A.C.L.U. is something that Verdi enjoys. At one time, he claims he wanted to be a lawyer, but after working at several law firms out of college, he realized that law was not for him. When he fell into working at an advertising agency he knew that he was in the right environment, because advertising was about ideas. He says that growing up in New York in the late '60's and early '70's, there was the notion that the ACLU had concepts that he could support and believe in. At the same time, it makes for the basis of some very interesting advertising. The most recent A.C.L.U. ad is designed to look like what you'd imagine to be an old fashioned wanted poster from the Wild West. It positions a photograph of Martin Luther King on the left side of the page next to a photo of Charles Manson on the right. The headline copy reads, "The Man on the Left is seventy-five times more likely to be stopped by the police while driving than the man on the right." Beneath the image the message goes on to say, "Police stop drivers based on their skin color rather than for the way they are driving." And of course, these illegal searches are against the constitution. Strong stuff. And to the point.

Says Verdi, "The A.C.L.U. challenges everyone at some point along the way."

But the great thing about being in the agency business is of course the number of different kinds of businesses Verdi has to deal with. "One day we're very active with thestreet.com, the next hour he is working with Eight O'Clock Coffee and later in the day he might be going into a meeting with the Pro Choice Movement. And that does not include the calls that come in from all sorts of business areas and political areas.

"If you have enough involvement at the level that I do, you just get a taste for so many different aspects of society and business."

Verdi's penchant for "mind-openers" and strong, memorable creative can be seen in the agency's television ad for Planned Parenthood. A pair of hands opens a condom while the background music plays a child's music box version of a lullaby, and the voice over says, "It's easier than putting on a diaper." DEVITO/VERDI'S ads leave no room for doubt.

"Advertising for a cause has to be chilling," says Verdi. "It has to be provocative. It's a big waste of money not to get attention."

When Amadou Diallo was shot in New York, the A.C.L.U. was outraged, and expressed that outrage through an ad showing a page sprayed with bullet holes. Next to each hole is a word from the rights Diallo should have been read prior to being arrested, had he lived long enough to be arrested. The Diallo ad had a particular time frame in which it was the strongest. Unfortunately people will forget Diallo. But, the Martin Luther King and Charles Manson ad are timeless and speak to the same issues.

The ad campaign for e.campus.com, an internet textbook company, has been one of their most successful campaigns. The ads are funny and startlingly truthful. If you can remember back to how little money you had as a student, perhaps you did eye your goldfish as a potential meal. And maybe you even fried it up and ate it for dinner the way the character in the television ad does. What to an adult might be a garbage bag, might well be considered luggage to a nineteen-year-old attending college, as it appears in Verdi's print ad. The agency creates advertising that speaks directly to the market. "All the best advertising has to come out of some truth," says Verdi. "One of the reasons that the campaign has been so successful is because it relies on truths about the product and truths about people."

Verdi coined a term regarding the type of advertising his agency does. He calls it the F-K YOU factor. I asked him to define what he meant by that remark. Verdi responded, "The ads have a tone that say that you are out of your mind not to pay attention to this ad. You can almost put a comma after some of the headlines, and the phrase that would follow would be - or you're an idiot. If the ad is very strong, it will have the implication that you are making a BIG mistake not to pay attention to this message."

Stay tuned. It should be an interesting summer in the Hamptons. Not only is Ellis Verdi a part-time resident of East Hampton, he's also a great person to have on your side if you happen to be running for the senate. So if you're being lulled into vacation bliss by the beauty of your surroundings, wake up and pay attention! Verdi's got something he wants to say to you. And you just might want to hear what he's got to say. •

EDWARD ALBEE AND ROBERT WILSON: "DIALOG"

By Jan Silver

Two of the most creative theatrical artists of our time, playwright Edward Albee and director Robert Wilson, met for an unscripted chat in the lush gardens at LongHouse Reserve, East Hampton, on August 5. Since the two had not planned what they would talk about, it became an adventure for both speakers and audience. The end result: they talked about how they work and the very nature of their creativity.

Edward Albee says he writes all the time but never knows when a play will develop. He often looks over what he has written and realizes that he has unconsciously started a play. "The making of a work of art is something we probably already know," he notes, because creativity goes on in the unconscious mind. "Ninety-five percent of what we know is in the unconscious mind."

Robert Wilson agrees with Albee, but his unconscious creativity comes forth in a different way. "Most of my work is an event. It is not something to be repeated. I start with a formal structure, like an architect. Time is plastic, elastic."

Wilson's undergraduate degree is in architecture. He views time as a vertical dimension and space as horizontal. The point at which they cross creates tension, drama. "Art is asking questions," he says, "and the viewer must find his or her own answers."

Albee expands on this point when an audience member asks how he feels when other people direct his plays or critics find many different meanings in his work. "No two people see the same play...or work of art...because they bring their own background experience to the play." He quips that when starting work with actors on a new play, he tells them they can bring whatever they want to their parts as long as they speak every word he has written. "I give them the illusion of freedom."

Another listener inquires how long a theatrical work should be. Robert Wilson, who is known

review: desire, caught by the tail

By Marion Wolberg Weiss

If this were any place else but the Hamptons (meaning New York), Oddfellows' staged reading of Desire, Caught by the Tail probably would have gone unnoticed. After all, it's the kind of play that's not particularly new, having defined off-off Broadway since its inception. Influenced by avant-garde art/theatre movements (Dada/Theatre of the Absurd), the script by Pablo Picasso may be considered somewhat passé.

Even so, the reading was a welcomed experience for the eyes and the ears last Friday at Robert Wilson's Watermill Center: obviously, any opportunity to participate in a literary endeavor by Picasso makes it important. Moreover, any chance for the local community to see an Oddfellows Playhouse production is equally important: you can be sure that director Maria Pessino will provide provocative fare which is often lacking on the East End.

Desire, Caught by the Tail exists on multiple levels: its structure or plot is non-linear and therefore difficult to experience for some people. True to the avant-garde arts movement, the script doesn't support a chronological order where "what follows what" is the norm (Monday, Tuesday, etc.). Rather, it establishes a "what goes with what" logic that is more complex (as in fork, knife, spoon).

The play's text furnishes another level: Picasso's words/syntax are both absurd and meaningful, poetry and prose. Recurring patterns prevail in a non-linear, seemingly haphazard, way as well (for example, the mention of food).

The visual aspect of Desire, Caught by the Tail is its third important dimension: evocation of a Felliniesque, circus-like world where bigger-than-life characters cavort to their own delight and reality is recreated as fantasy and imagination.

For astute spectators, the multiple levels worked effectively. For those not familiar with non-linear plays, the visual aspects were enough to keep the audience's attention especially translated with clarity by wonderful actors, like Jacqui Leader and Janice Bishop.

There was another dimension at work, however, where disconcertion was imposed by the director and not an intrinsic part of the play itself: the seating arrangement for the audience. While the spectators surrounded the main acting area on three sides, the actors sometimes walked into the audience when reciting lines.

Such action signifies that the original intent was perhaps to make the audience participate more in the play, even sitting on the floor/grass. Viewers needed to be involved emotionally in the experience and not removed from it. They needed to feel as if they could laugh often if they felt like it.

Yet this notion may be a small matter in the long run. The important thing is that the Oddfellows Playhouse takes risks, offering stimulating alternatives to mainstream/commercial presentations in the Hamptons. •

review: everyone's a writer, (god help us)

By Allison Wiley

When I moved out here from New York last fall, I told everyone I was doing so to finally write the book I had been talking about writing for so many years. Perhaps our desire to write is to validate our existence, to provide us with a slice of immortality, to serve as a catharsis or perhaps as Roger Rosenblatt, award winning writer, Time magazine essayist and Southampton Professor believes, it is in our genes. In his discussion entitled "Everyone's a Writer (God Help Us)" at the Jewish Center of the Hamptons, Mr. Rosenblatt makes a very convincing argument for this belief.

He describes us as a narrative people noting that each family has stories that they perpetuate from one generation to the next. In this way we are similar to various Indian tribes who have only a verbal history and the tradition of telling these stories keeps the history of their people alive. He carries this theory a step further by stating that all businesses and professions are in fact based on the narration of stories. For instance, in the case of medicine, you recount the story of your illness to your physician and he recounts the story of your treatment to you. Likewise, in business, various departments tell the collective stories of inventories and profit and loss and these become the combined story of marketing and sales.

He states that we differ from animals in that they must communicate to survive whereas we survive to communicate as witnessed by the last desperate efforts of Polish concentration camp victims who wrote their names, messages or stories of internment on any scrap of paper they could find and stuffed them into crevices in the surrounding walls never knowing if they would be found and read. Or the passengers of the ill-fated Andrea Gale (The Perfect Storm) whose last gesture was to write a message in a bottle and toss it overboard. Our desire, our need to communicate, to provide narration is so inbred that in our final moments it is our only thought.

If as Mr. Rosenblatt contends, we all feel the need to communicate why aren't we all writers? He explained that for him the desire to write professionally was born largely as the result of an afternoon spent with his grandfather at the age of five when his grandfather asked him to tell a story. This afternoon differed because in all previous encounters his grandfather had always been the storyteller. He remembered the story he told him vividly and the look of rapt attention in his grandfather's eyes as the two of them journeyed on that day's adventure together through the retelling of his story. He knew on that day, and as a result of that experience, that he wanted to recreate that look in everyone's eye through the telling of his stories. He related a series of amusing anecdotes regarding his penchant to memorize unique movie lines and drop them into everyday conversation with some more easily accomplished than others. He then discussed the time he spent in Russia following the Cold War when he was preparing a special for network news. He related this instance to one of our basic needs to communicate and that is freedom—the freedom that the writer feels in expressing his ideas and the freedom that the reader feels in reading and restaurant on Montauk Highway in Moriches to honor the occasion. Peter is a sales executive at Dan's Papers.

As if there weren't enough books out there prefaced by "The Hamptons...", here is another one but with a difference. It is a cartoon book with a bite (not a vampire one if you please). It is an ironic, yet a loving one, that pokes fun at the stereotypical foibles of our changing East End world. The Hamptons' Cartoons Over The Edge is a product of the fertile imagination of East Hampton artist, Irwin Perton whose whimsy is an integral part of his paintings and sculptures that are regularly displayed in local galleries. His sculptured chairs, "Homage to the Artist" were included in a recent show at the Elaine Benson Gallery in Bridgehampton.

Long Island's star-bedeviled equestrian and social event, the Hampton Classic Horse Show, has placed a major bet that its new Instinet Cyber Café will become the focal point for the promotion of a diverse collection of web-based sponsors. The Hampton Classic is entering its twenty-fifth year and is advertising that it is now "25 years new," having just completed a major overhaul of its Bridgehampton show site. Thanks to the innovative Instinet Cyber Café there will be numerous interactive opportunities for all spectators and participants.

Monday evening, August 14, Back Stage Bistro Award winner for Outstanding Singer/Songwriter, Bonnie Lee Sanders with Joel Diamond on piano, and Bob Desjardins on bass will appear at Nick's by the Sea in Montauk. Dinner, drinks and Bonnie's originals and favorite standards are on the menu. Bon Apetite!

Author/artist Marilyn Sunderman whose recent book Past Lives, Present Joys, will be at Frank Tramantano's gallery/house show, benefiting Long Island Head Injury Association this Friday, 7-9 p.m., Saturday and Sunday 3-9 p.m. with a percentage of the proceeds go to the Association. There will be fifteen other internationally known artists exhibiting this final weekend at 7 Church Street in East Hampton.

"Cuba Today, Observations By Recent Visitors From The East End will be the topic for the World Affairs Council of Long Island" program which features Dan Rattiner, Publisher and Editor in Chief, Dan's Papers, Harvey and Barbara Hellering producers of a multi-media documentary on Cuban traditional musicians and life in old Havana; John McAuliff, Executive Director, Fund for Reconciliation and Development, on Saturday, August 12, at 5 p.m. The program will be followed by the discussion of a planned December WACLI study tour to Cuba. # a tribute to tony walton

By Ben Amato

If you have never heard of Tony Walton, maybe you have heard of some of his friends. They're Emmy, Tony and Oscar. Those are some of the awards he has won during his forty years in show business. On August 13, at Guild Hall, his wondrous career as director, production manager, set and costume designer will be reviewed in a "Tribute to Tony Walton." Melissa Errico and Katie Hoffman are two Broadway stars arranging, producing and generally putting together this evening of song. Brent Barrett will lend his voice to the dozens of show tunes selected from the works Tony Walton has been associated with. The Importance of Being Earnest, Major Barbara, Chicago, Anything Goes, the Will Rogers' Follies and a resume of films, ballets and operas are too long to mention here, will contribute their best tunes, in honor of Tony's gift of design and direction.

When asked about his long history of work, Tony revealed, "It just all goes blank. But I can tell you what I did last week. The Man Who Came to Dinner. Nathan Lane, oh God." Tony worked with Nathan before, in the revival of A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum. And after him, he designed for Whoopie Goldberg's turn at the play. "She's got stage chops," Tony remembered, "I did costume designs for her, worked on her first show and she is completely the same person, she didn't change. She has a completely vital, alive presence."

"I've been traveling like a crazed person," Tony said, from his office in Sag Harbor. In a converted one car garage he has his work table set up. Often he labors at his New York office, with assistants doing the work, "the nuts and bolts, the telephone work, the follow through."

"My wife has the attic," said Tony, "and I work in my out building. Mostly sketches, but I try to be different each time, to avoid habits. I don't want any similar solutions. I look at a particular piece (show, film, ballet or opera) and do whatever it takes. A graphic, or colors, or a collage or work

Tony's career with film had him working with Harrison Ford, Jack Nicholson, Dustin Hoffman, ex-wife Julie Andrews and dozens of other bright stars. His Broadway credits make you think he has never left the city, but in the last few months, he's been to Ireland three times, Washington DC once, London and then a dash to San Diego, to direct the Opps! Big Apple Circus Stage Show.

"This is the best time I have ever had in theater. It's a mixture of theater and circus. I co-wrote it with Dan Kuchar." Tony explained the show is about a strange collection of Shakespearean actors sharing a scheduling problem and a stage with a European Circus. "There was no common language among the performers. But there were kids and they learned the language faster. I used the six and seven year olds as translators."

"I've got a lucky feeling, and it's only fairly recently. With success I can get a little choosier. I have found the most fun, the most challenging projects are in the not-for-profit world. The world that's strictly for a laugh."

Tony explained that being a set and costume designer means working within a team. "When I first read something, I have to guard against a rush of imagery. My work has to be totally collaborative. I have to know what the author intended and how the director wants to funnel it through." Designer Walton revealed that once he came to a play with an entire concept, a look formed in his head. "The director said, 'oh, really, I have a completely different idea.' Now, I think of it (new projects) as a radio play and I allow the imagery to emerge."

"In the day to day work as a designer, no one is rushing around to help you," Tony said with a sigh, "but as a director, everyone is trying to help. And I get a mothering type of feeling." Tony with paper. I try to get a feeling for things. I'm very visual."

"I play music, a wide range. I'm looking for things that don't belong. These can guide you. I work best exhausted, sometimes right through the night. I let my systems go, 5 a.m. work, when I'm more on a wavelength with a piece."

A Rising Star In Three Mile Harbor

By Ben Amato

The motor yacht Eastern Star is more than the latest luxury ship to ply the waters of the East End. It is actually the culmination of one man's dream, to build and captain an elegant vessel and allow anyone who comes aboard a chance to feel the beauty and serenity of the sea. In a world of virtual realities, Captain Nick Kutseera and his wife Laurie have created a unique actual one, an eighty-five foot Cruising Country Inn. For the twelve guests who share each voyage of the Eastern Star, their attitudes and lives are changed, always for the better.

"There's a process to getting used to the ship. On the first day, the passengers are stressed... wound up. On day two, they are starting to relax. They start to ask questions about the ship and the waters. They shed their skins," said Laurie. "On day three, everyone is totally relaxed. We don't want to leave," is all we hear. One man wanted to go out and buy a boat. It's interesting to watch the transformation, but great."

"Watching the water is like watching a campfire...mesmerizing," added Captain Nick. "People are so stressed out. This gives people back to themselves. Things are clear."

The Eastern Star stands out as a glistening white jewel, at the end of Gardiners Marina, in Three Mile Harbor. Though she dwarfs many of the other ships in this East Hampton bay, it is her brilliant white paint, contrasting with the heavily varnished wood trim, that draws all curious eyes.

When Nick and Laurie first purchased their ship in 1997, they did not see a thirty year old fishing vessel, once used as a party boat. They visualized and then created, a floating New England style Bed and Breakfast Inn, complete with a main saloon, a wood burning stove, an oak paneled library, a formal dining room with cherrywood tables, six luxurious staterooms and a huge topside deck to watch the world drift away.

At the start of this year's cruising season, Captain Nick sailed the Eastern Star to the Newport Spring Charter Yacht Show. "My ship had a different feel, a real change from all the mega yachts. Surrounded by diamonds, it was nice to see a sapphire." Nick would go to these boat shows to learn from others, to see how their ships are outfitted and run. "More people were coming up to us, to have us tell them how we did it."

The ship's chef, Ms. Kimberly Hicks, would listen in from her galley, "It was great to hear the comments, up-lifting, all positive."

"When you work on a project for so long, you go with your instincts," added Laurie. "We all had a peak experience."

Especially chef Kimberly, for she entered the Concours des Chef Competition. Kim had limited notice to prepare two gourmet hors d'oeuvres fit for the judges. Nick began the story, "We arrived at 7 p.m. and five minutes later, the lines were not even tied, two very bubbly women approached and notified us that the photographers would be aboard the next day at 3 p.m. and the judges at 3:15."

"At 6 a.m. the next morning, I grabbed the yellow pages," Kimberly chimed in, "I was somewhat familiar with Newport. I went to school in Providence, Johnson and Wales." This energetic French

OBSERVATIONS OF AN ISLANDER #118 HMO A.K.A. HUGE MONEY OPERATION

I notice a lot of people have trouble understanding their HMO's. I worked for eleven years as a Discharge Planner. Sometimes my duties included Utilization Review. Working "UR" taught me the HMO game. You see, most HMO's, and MediCare, pay providers, like physicians and hospitals, a flat fee per diagnosis in exchange for promising the provider greater patient volume.

In the hospital setting, if the hospital can get you out before they spend the fee they're getting for you, they profit. If you stayed past the estimated "break even" day, they lose money. The rule in modern medicine is to "send 'em home quicker and sicker." The Discharge Planner has the difficult task of trying to replicate all the help you were getting in the hospital so you can go home early. But, the insurance companies resist paying for home help because, you must not need the help if you're well enough to go home early. It's a perfect Catch-22. Having seen the nasty underpinnings of insurance, I formed the opinion that big business has no business in medicine.

I thought I'd share some inside information to help:

1. Physicians: Physicians are authorized for you to use according to proximity. The physician furthest from your home, but within state boundaries, will be your doctor. If a physician can be found who barely speaks English, she/he will be your primary doctor.

2. Physical, Occupational and Speech Therapy: You must first obtain a written prescription from your primary physician. If you are too injured and traced his directing skills "to about 100 years ago. I was directing, acting and rather cocky. But when I started getting paid for it, I became self-conscious, totally inept. Then in the late '50's, early '60's during a Circle in the Square revival, I attended a Shakespeare course and the entire class was in the cast of Connections, a play by Jack Gelber about drug addiction. Al Pacino, DeNiro. And they wanted to do Shakespeare, As You Like It and I directed. An enjoyable experience. So Charolette Moore, artistic director for the Irish Repertory Theater calls and says "I'm calling your bluff." She was referring to a quote I made in a newspaper story about being ready to direct again. So I said let's do The Importance of Being Earnest. I just illustrated the book for Limited Editions Book Club."

From there it was another stint at directing with Major Barbara and work on Will Rogers' Follies and Annie Get Your Gun. Tony Walton is a whirlwind of accomplishment and finally is to get the recognition he so richly deserves. He is even slated to do an autobiography titled Scene Changes. "I've fought this project off because it feels like an end to something." From one conversation with this man, it is obvious that the end to his excellence is nowhere in sight.

For information on the Tribute to Tony Walton contact Guild Hall. An evening of songs from the historic Broadway path he has helped forge is sure to be memorable.

amazing," referring to the union between the Atlantis Aquarium and the Riverhead Foundation for Marine Research and Preservation. "They allow us to run our rescue and rehabilitation programs and our outreach programs, to the community. There's funds for our marine mammal sighting programs."

In the rear of the aquarium is the Foundation's facilities, a glass enclosed laboratory so the public can watch research as it's being done, a full marine life hospital, food preparation facilities and lots of room for growth.

"Plover is a hooded seal, we picked him up at Jones Beach two weeks ago, around 11 o'clock.. He was underweight but now he's eating eight pounds a day, fish. Herring." Kim was leaning on one of the two occupied rescue tanks. Five others stood to one side and an huge outdoor tank was under construction.

"This is a loggerhead sea turtle. He washed up on Cape Cod and the New England Aquarium called us up. They had no space, over 200 animals washed up. They drove him down to Mystic and we met them at the ferry." Kim also talked of the work ahead, "We see a lot of boat hits. The majority of them (sea turtles) are dead. We have a seal with deep, deep lacerations around it neck. It's sort of senseless. We rescued him in Montauk, he was caught in netting, for a while."

"From Thanksgiving through January. Those are busy months. It's the cold. Cold stunting. It gets so cold there's hypothermia, so cold they can't move." But a smile was across Kim's face, for she knew the Foundation and the Atlantis Aquarium would be there, working to save lives and preserve Long Islands natural wonders.

This will be the first winter in which tourists will continue to flock into the Riverhead downtown area, escaping the cold winter to enjoy some time under the sea. Just as Atlantis lived and now re-lives, the downtown area of Riverhead will bloom, no matter the season. It looks like both the marine mammals and the town businesses are no longer stranded.

Sanctuary

Gay Devoe added that some people are also looking for animals for sacrifices. "There are people in the East Indian culture who will sacrifice a male goat at a wedding." There has also been an increase in the practice of Santeria on Long Island, a religion that often sacrifices chickens as part of its rituals.

Not surprisingly, as their reputation for taking in unwanted animals has grown, the DeVoes have found goats tied to a tree in front of their property and chickens and roosters in boxes. They have even taken animals from agents of the Suffolk County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. "This happened twice, though we did not get any money to help take care of the animals."

Roy Gross, head of the Smithtown-based Suffolk Country for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, said in a phone interview that he had not heard of the DeVoes and their animals until recently. He could not make any comment on any decisions by the organization's agents to give an animal to an individual or individuals, but he had no problem with the DeVoes. "There certainly doesn't appear to be any animal cruelty there."

Along with caring for hundreds of animals, the DeVoes must be focused on raising money now. They are grateful that Neptune Feed in Calverton extended them credit to the tune of $10,000. "We've paid off $3,000 on that bill," said Mrs. Devoe.

On Saturday, August 12, The DeVoes will have a fundraiser on their ranch in Manorville (344 Wading River Road) to help defray debts and the continuing costs of taking care of so many animals. Party Lights will be donating a sales commission of any goods sold to the Double D Bar Ranch. Donations can be sent to the Ranch at Box 111 Manorville, NY, 11949. ## TEN YEARS AGO

"The Banning"
August 11, 1990

It was four o'clock in the afternoon, the game was over, and I climbed down from my seat in the mezzanine behind third base, walked out to my car in the parking lot and headed home. The Mets had won another one but I was hoarse from shouting. It had been tough.

When I pulled into my driveway in Westhampton Beach, I noticed there was a news van from CBS parked out front. Also several people with pads and pencils. One of them shouted at me as I walked up the sidewalk, but I didn't hear what he said. My wife Emily was at the front door and she was motioning me in.

"What's up?" I asked.

She closed the door.

"You remember how you told me that policeman gave you a talking to at Shea last Thursday for yelling obscenities at the right fielder?" she asked.

"Yes."

"Well, you got a letter. It's from the Commissioner of Baseball."

Emily handed me this important looking letter in a white linen envelope. The return address said it was from the Commissioner of Baseball, Fay Vincent, Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. There was a full color seal of the commissioner's office and where the stamp ought to be there were the words OFFICIAL BUSINESS.

I tore the envelope open and quickly read the single spaced letter inside. I felt fear, pain, anguish. Then I felt numb. I wouldn't be attending any more baseball games.

"What is it?" Emily asked.

"I've been banned from baseball," I said. "I'm the first fan banned from baseball."

"That can't be," she said.

"It is. Listen. I have reviewed the report given by Officer McLaughlin regarding your conduct on August second, that was last Thursday, and I find that your behavior is not in the best interests of the high standards that have made Professional Baseball synonymous with the American Way."

"I told you you shouldn't be shouting that stuff," Emily said.

"Everybody shouts that stuff."

"People shout 'kill the umpire,' and 'the ump's a monkey' and stuff like that."

"I get carried away."

"Well I guess this is the end of it."

"I am hereby placing you on the permanent disability list. You are to relinquish your season ticket by bringing it to Gate 7 anytime between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on August 11, for which you will receive a full refund. You are to remain away from Shea Stadium, from its surrounding parking lot, from contact with any ballplayers, officials or other fans coming from or going to Shea Stadium, from any other baseball stadium, or from any bar or tavern in which baseball might be discussed. You are to report to the commissioner's office every six months to confirm that this directive has been complied with, and at the end of three years, you may request a review.

"What do you want me to tell these reporters?" Emily asked.

"It says here I am not to tell anybody anything. I'm not to make any comment at all about organized baseball."

"Well, they're not banning me. I can tell them something," Emily said.

She opened the front door and a dozen reporters, surprised at the sudden activity, simply turned there on our front steps and stared at her.

Emily shoved out her chin. "F—k off," she said.

HEADLINE NEWS

STARGAZER FOR SALE: $500,000

Stargazer, the reddish sculpture that marks the border of the Hamptons in Manorville, is up for sale. The work, six stories tall, of metal and wood, depicts the head of a deer reaching up to nibble on a branch. Is the creation of Linda Scott. Stargazer, which has been in its present location on since 1991, between the Expressway and Sunrise Highway (one sees it as soon as one turns onto 111 from Sunrise) has become a true landmark of the East End.

Previously Stargazer was at East Hampton Airport. Originally intended to be placed at the entrance of the Animal Rescue Fund (ARF) of the Hamptons in Wainscott, East Hampton Town decided the sculpture was too big.

Ms. Scott, who says that the work cost $250,000 to create and maintenance costs are about $20,000 to $30,000 every two years.

Ideally Scott would like a corporation to take over the piece and leave it where it is. Recently she sought the aid of the publisher of Dan's Papers, Dan Rattiner, to spearhead a committee to gather funds for the sculpture or find a buyer. A corporation might feel it wonderful advertising to have their logo alongside something that millions of people pass during the year coming to or leaving the Hamptons. But Ms. Scott is also willing to allow Stargazer to be moved if a buyer so wills it.

for creating long theater pieces that go on for several hours or even days, wants an audience to take from the work whatever they want. And Albee adds, "How long should a play be? As long as it takes."

The two men do work differently. Albee writes alone, with all of his characters present and interacting. Wilson likes to create with a group of collaborators, but "I do go into a blank room and let the space talk to me."

Both artists note that their choice of profession probably was evident from an early age. "I was playing theatrical role games with neighborhood kids when I was five years old," Albee remembers. "We had one game called 'Gray Seal' where we stole our mothers' jewelry, and we played Robin Hood.... I was taken to the theater as a young child - he conjures up his fascination with the original Broadway production of Hellzapoppin (1938) - and that probably was most influential in my becoming a playwright."

Wilson, who grew up in Texas, remembers being content to work on many things at once. That is still the way he likes to work. He is collaborating on fourteen projects now at Watermill Center, a living/workspace complex north of Montauk Highway where artists, designers, writers, musicians, photographers, filmmakers and architects from around the world come to work with him. Some of the ongoing assignments: the Aventis Study (a theater work about life in the 21st century); a two-month festival of theater, music, film, etc. for the Barbican Center in London; a production of Janacek's opera Ossud for the National Theater in Prague; a production of Chekov's Three Sisters in Stockholm, 2001; design for a fashion layout for French Vogue's December 2000 issue; WillmS, a new musical based on the life, loves and death of William Shakespeare.

The three men responsible for this event all have nonprofit foundations that nurture younger artists. Robert Wilson started the Watermill Center in 1991, purchasing an old Western Union laboratory. With his collaborators and interns, he works every summer simultaneously on new projects while remodeling and upgrading the property. Watermill Center is a remarkable place. It is offering tours this summer (call 631-726-6110).

Edward Albee created the Edward Albee Foundation in Montauk, where young playwrights can temporarily live and work, many years ago. Albee says he will write as long as he has something to say. He is working on a new play. "I won't say anything about it in case there are thieves in the audience!"

Crafts master Jack Lenor Larsen, a fabric creator and founder of the American crafts movement, set up LongHouse Reserve in East Hampton as a showcase for garden design, world crafts, art and music. There are unique artistic events at LongHouse all summer. "Bamboo Day" is planned for September 9 with food, music, furniture and other arts and crafts made from bamboo. With the Republican Convention behind us and the Democratic Convention on the horizon a lot of the "buzz" is about politics. Added to that is that the candidates seem to have found their way out to the East End. The Vice-President even made his way to the Church in Sag Harbor this past Sunday.

My friend, Robert Zimmerman is a Democratic National Committee member. He is also a New York State delegate to the Democratic convention. He invited me to join him and a few other East Enders at the convention. The other day he was asked what he is to me. He said he's my driver. How strange! He's important and I'm just an observer. Obviously it was a joke. I find it a funny one. I'm vitally interested in seeing history being made on a first hand basis. I like seeing how the system works. I know my mother would have encouraged me to go. It's hard to believe I will abandon my business in August but in fact it's only for a few days and I can't keep myself from wanting to see what it's all about.

My dear friend, Betty Schlein has been to seven conventions. We're traveling together. I know she will be able to explain things to me. I'm taking my camera and expect to get good photos. I'll send them back to the paper if I get anything of interest. We're staying at the Century Plaza where I'm told Vice President Gore, other major leaders and the New York State delegation are staying. I'm excited.

Robert Zimmerman has often told people the story of how we met. He came into the gallery as a client. He was a little overwhelmed by all the hype about the Hamptons and came into the gallery not knowing what to expect. He thought we might be snobbish. He met my mother and me. We talked for a while. He left feeling like a friend and has been one ever since. He became the perfect escort. He often accompanied my mother and me to charity events. He was our mutual date. We both came to appreciate his company and his mind. He owns a PR firm in Great Neck. He finally bought a house in Southampton after years of renting. He has done work for Southampton Hospital, the East Hampton school system, the Southampton school system, me, and a ton of other people out here. He works with Al Gore and the New York State Democratic Committee. He was appointed one of the N.Y. State Chairs for the Gore Presidential Committee. Zimmerman/ Edelson Inc. has national clients and New York based clients. I'm amazed he still has time to see me (and be my driver).

This area has so many interesting people. It's impossible to know them all. I'm lucky that some of them make their way into my gallery and that by some small miracle I get to know them. It's a fascinating place to live. Don't believe everything you read in New York magazine!

relating to these ideas. During the time he spent in Russia he was accompanied by a p.r. man (spy) from the government office who consistently expressed the party line – the freedom that the people had to pursue their occupation while serving interests of the state. Only when left to their own devices, while singing traditional folk songs, did the true yearning for freedom surface. An example, he believes, of a nation living a communal

Mr. Rosenblatt believes that writers write because they are a different breed. They stand apart, they observe, they don't participate, they are on another plane. They create because they want to make things better as in telling a child a story to explain a situation, to make people happy or to inform (not to persuade or influence). He believes that the reader and the writer take a journey together and the vehicle for that journey is the sentence. Each bit of punctuation is a bend in the road along this journey and it doesn't have finality until the end, the period. He believes that sentences take their own course and that the reader and the writer find their way to the end together. This is the result of the chaos in our minds which only allows us to know what we really think when we write.

It is said of writers that they live in the past to which Mr. Rosenblatt quoted another famous writer who states that this is out of necessity "as the present moves too fast and the future is unknown." Maybe we write to capture a moment in time, attempt to reign in the present or leave our mark on the future. Or maybe there are as many reasons to write and there are writers to reason. I guess that Mr. Rosenblatt is right.

Throughout his discussion, Mr. Rosenblatt related funny, and sometimes self-deprecating anecdotes making his talk informative, illuminating and entertaining. I can readily see why he is such an asset to Southampton College. The Jewish Center of the Hamptons will be hosting similar programs as part of the 21st Century Issues Lecture Series in conjunction with the College and I highly recommend them. The next program will be held on August 14 and will feature Lewis Greenstein discussing "Whither Africa (or Wither Africa). The architect, Norman Jaffe, has done such a remarkable job with space and natural light that you will almost feel as if you are outside even on a beautiful summer day!

in pain to drive to your doctor for him/her to validate that you need therapy, then you must not need it bad enough.

3. Prescriptions: If it's going to extend your life, it's not authorized. The HMO provides your doctor with a list of medications he can prescribe for your diagnosis. Now, technically they aren't telling him/her what they can/cannot prescribe, it's just what they will or won't pay for. I once saw a mistake on a Blue Cross list where they listed a birth control pill as an authorized medication for prostate cancer. On the other hand, maybe it wasn't a mistake, maybe it was a new cost saving prescription list.

4] Prosthetics: HMO's save a lot here. What do you need an artificial leg for? What wrong with good old fashioned crutches?

5] Almost all HMO's and even MediCare pay for Viagra as being "necessary to the physical and emotional well-being of the patient." They never pay for reconstruction surgery after a mastectomy. Awh, c'mon now honey, be reasonable, how can losing a body part compare to losing an erection?

I've often thought Shelter Island should have its own HMO. We could call it the Shelter Island Cooperative Health Maintenance Organization, SCHMO for short. Provider's would be called SCHMOOS and recipients, SCHMOOZERS. We'd have our resident two doc's on the plan. We have an ambulance and a pharmacy. We've got carpenters to make prosthetics.

We could use Island currency for co-pays. I think a three pond bluefish qualifies as a co-pay. If you've got crabs, give 'em to the doc. Ferry tickets, credits at the hardware store, and promissory notes to perform recycle/dump runs are all viable currency here.

We have lots of nurses on Island for home care. Physical/Occupational Therapy can be done at the yard sales: running, bending down, reaching, punching, counting money, it's all here. Assisted swim therapy would be available by holding onto drag ropes from the ferry and practice kicking your feet. If you tire, let go of the rope and just tread water till the ferry picks you up on the way back.

Speech/Cognitive Therapy is here too. We have some characters on the Island, no, it's true. If you just say hello to some of them, you can practice your listening skills for hours. If you need help cognitively, you can sit at the counter at Pat & Steve's and see how many conversations you can keep track of simultaneously.

SCHMO, an idea whose time has come... •

Star

Culinary Institute graduate was excited and almost breathless telling her part of the tale. "I felt like I was on that cooking show, Ready, Set, Cook." She scoured the town, gathering the fresh produce, seasonings, seafood and flowers that she would need. She even took the captain's mango, that he had been saving for his own personal snack.

"I told her to relax and have a good time," added Laurie.

There were ten contestants from participating yachts who were being judged by the food critics and editors from the Boston Herald, the Providence Journal, the Christian Science Monitor and Wine Spectator magazine. In a matter of a few short hours, chef Kimberly created the winning hors d'oeuvres and took the prestigious Charles Heidsieck Cup home to the Eastern Star. She prepared capper studded lobster cakes with an herb chive dipping sauce, paired with Charles Heidsieck Champagne, Mis en Cave '93. Her other winning entry was green chili and cilantro marinated shrimp and mango, in blue corn cups. This she paired with a different year champagne, Mis en Cave '96.

"I really wanted that mango," added Captain Nick, but it was obvious that he did not mind the personal sacrifice that was needed to bring home the Cup. This silver prize sits proudly displayed on the mahogany bar in the main saloon.

Adventures await the Eastern Star, with voyages scheduled for the Newport JVC Jazz Festival, trips to southern New England, fall foliage tours up the Hudson River and of course, exploring the waters of Eastern Long Island. This winter, Nick plans to take the ship and crew south, and help Chef Kim achieve her personal goal of being on the rear deck of a beautiful ship, "sitting in Key West, a cheeseburger in one hand, a margarita in the other and Jimmy Buffet on the sound system."

"For 15 years I would get so melancholy being here (during winter)...but now we're going south. We're going to cruise the Keys, around Sanibel Island and then bring it up to Lake Okeechobee.

We're thinking about an eco-tourism tour," said Capt. Nick, with a look of absolute glee in his eyes.

For now, it is the gorgeous waters of Long Island that thrills the crew and guests of the Eastern Star, especially West Neck Harbor, Shelter Island. "Laurie and I honeymooned there. We were going to go to Block Island but this was one week after Hurricane Bob. It was devastated. No electricity, downed trees, so we went there (West Neck). ...The low hills, the water, it all felt so right...it is such a beautiful area to share with people....it makes us so proud."

So when Power and Motor Yacht Magazine booked the Eastern Star for a three night East End cruise, Nick piloted his ship right back to that spot. There were five course gourmet meals, fine wine and vineyard tours provided by Joann Perry of Vintage Tours, a kayak lesson and adventure with Mark Terry, of East Coast Adventures Tours, and a sunset clambake on the beach.

"The lovely evening, people asking questions, the sharing, the learning." Nick paused and looked at his wife Laurie. "We stood outside on the back deck and just shook our heads. This is home."

Chef Kimberly added the last word, "Every toast we make on this ship is to a new friend."

For more information about the Eastern Star contact Captain Nick Kutsler at 1(800) 445-5942 or go to their wonderful website, www.easternstarcruises.com.

Yurman Adorns The Dogs at Vered For ARF

On display in a museum setting at the Vered Gallery in East Hampton, David Yurman once again created an exclusive design for a worthy cause. This time a cable collection for dogs and cats to benefit The Animal Rescue Fund. Over 400 guests were served elegant desserts (Park Avenue Catering), espresso and champagne while gazing at these incredible gem studded leather dog collars in hot pastels and sterling silver dog tags. Yurman also raised over a quarter of a million for Project ALS recently, and as a resident of East Hampton, David and Sybil are committed to being of assistance to animals in need. Bravo. On August 19 at the Bow Wow Luau, this incredible jewelry will be auctioned off for man's best friend at the home of Ellen and Chuck Scarborough. See you there.

Holistic Health

The Guild of Holistic Practitioners was founded in 1995. The guild includes sixty members dedicated to treating people's body, mind and spirit. The Guild held its first annual benefit at the Elaine Benson Gallery this past Friday. Included in the evening's entertainment was an African dance company headed by Susan Bailey, her son Daniel on the drums and other dancers and drummers. The keynote speaker for the event was Beth Moran. There were demos and healthy treats, a silent auction, product information, etc. STAR (Standing for Truth About Radiation) had a table of information as well.

Renowned, Contemporary French Impressionist at Wally Findlay Galleries

A cocktail reception was held at Wally Findlay Galleries to introduce us to renowned French artist Isabelle de Ganay. The premiere of her East Hampton exhibition was exciting. Ms. de Ganay, accompanied by Baron Philippe de La Pomelye flew in from France for this special event. Ms. de Ganay was a student of the late Albert Malet and is considered one of France's leading impressionists. Fine art lovers were treated to an exciting opening of this world renowned painter's works.

Southampton Hospital Annual Party

Photography and Text By Kimberly Goff

The Southampton Hospital held its annual party on Saturday night. Dinner, dancing, cocktails and a raffle contributed to the fun, but the best part of the evening was the feeling of encouragement made possible by the news that the hospital is finally seeing its way to a feeling of growth and prosperity again. Phyllis Davis' $500,000 donation (made possible by Bell Atlantic), a new expanded board, a new CEO and excellent management are making our small community hospital into an example of how to put things back on track. Adair Beutel was the event chair for the second year. We thank her! The Southampton Hospital services the entire East End and is an important community asset.

Movies, Movies, Movies

Summer is the time for movie previews, premieres and private screenings. There was an advance screening of Nurse Betty at the super trendy Tribeca Grand Hotel. Since there will be a big event in the Hamptons for USA films Nurse Betty, I won't comment on it other than that I loved it, and would see it again at the Hamptons premiere. The Tribeca Grand is the first hotel I have ever seen where there was a velvet rope and guards to screen who gets into the lobby. Meanwhile out in the Hamptons, who would be more appropriate to host a screening for a movie entitled Love and Sex than Ted Field. Juicy Couture and Manhattan File sponsored the screening for this Famke Janssen flick, at Ted's summer digs. And then back to New York, Fine Line Cinema premiered the quirky film, Saving Grace at the DGA Theatre.

Saturdays at Polo

The Mercedes Benz Polo Challenge held its third Saturday of matches. As was the case last week, the grass was damp making the match dangerous for those expensive polo ponies as well as the expensive guys who ride them. One player suggested a helicopter to dry the field and another patron said why not have all the guests go out and blow on the grass. How about 500 portable hair dryers? However after an hour's wait, polo began. Inside the tent, the event had Leading Hotels of the World as a sponsor and benefitted City Harvest. The tent was crowded with many of the usual suspects, enjoying a beautiful afternoon of socializing.

KIDS

The Summerhouse

The summerhouse is always filled with fun. You pull up on the rocky driveway and think, "WE MADE IT!" You run up to the door and grandma comes to greet you. She has a wide grin across her face. Next you throw your bags in the guest room. You run outside to say hello to grandpa whether he's in the garden, Tick City, or the basement, he'll be there. And you think about what to do. Sometimes you might want to play in the yard. Or on the computer. Or in the front yard. Or on the driveway. Or anywhere. Because you're at the summerhouse. And anything can happen here.

You can find interesting plants, but be careful, there may be ticks. There are other fun things though, like in the warm weather there's the swimming pool. It's huge. Waiting to be jumped in. Just lying there in the stillness with its bumpy, long, blue cover. Gross, huge spiders crawl across the water. Small flies fill the skimmers. But it will get cleaned out later by grandpa. It won't stay like that long. It is wonderful. The best place to be. Because you're at the summerhouse. And anything can happen there.

When you visit on holidays, go to the deck. There are thousands of tasty, homemade, Armenian and American treats. Eat as much as you want, but just remember, there's a yummy dinner on the way. The summertime is always buzzing with excitement. Some choose to work with grandpa. Some choose to help in the kitchen. Some choose to play "Doggz" on the computer. Some choose to just hang out. Or some choose to play sports. The summerhouse has so many things to do. It's a free country. Do anything that pleases you. Because you're at the summerhouse. And anything can happen.

I am the summerhouse. Anything can happen here.

Hayground Children's Stories With Scheider At Madoo

What was your first favorite book, the one you couldn't put down, even for ice cream and popcorn or a movie? What did your parents read to you night after night at bedtime? What book did that special teacher hand to you at just the right moment, the one that changed your life?

An exciting group of actors, writers and musicians, hosted by Sagaponack resident and Hayground School parent Roy Scheider, whose latest in a career of sixty films, Better Living with Olympia Dukakis, opens this Friday, August 4th, will share favorite stories from or about childhood at the artist Robert Dash's renowned Madoo Conservancy on Sunday August 13th beginning at 4 p.m. The event will benefit Hayground School's Scholarship Program; more than half of the school's families receive tuition assistance.

Pulitzer Prize winning playwright and new Hayground parent Marsha Norman, jazz star Chico Hamilton, Daisy Mayer who directed the film "Madeline" based on the timeless children's book and starring Frances McDormand, film stars Rosie

Perez and Kate Capshaw, internationally acclaimed poet Sonia Sanchez will offer the treasure of their childhood favorites along with original works at Hayground's second "When We Were Young."

Vocalist/percussionist Tiye Giraud, who "brought the sun out" last August with her performance, will lead Hayground children to open this year's program.

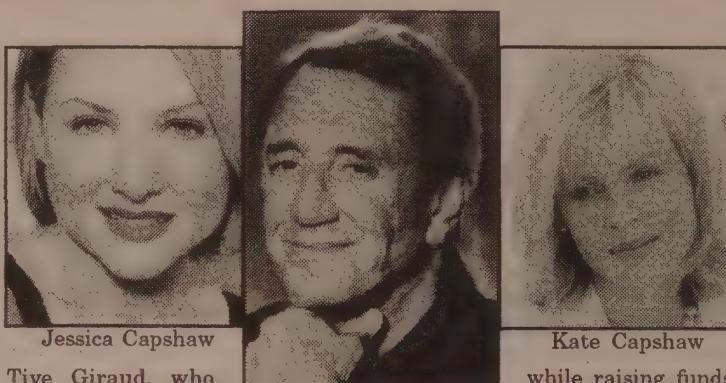

According to Hayground Educational Advisor, Susan Engel: "Our job at Hayground is to draw each child into his or her life as an intellectual. We don't want children to think of reading as leisure any more than we want them to think of it as a chore. We want them to think of it as something they cannot live without."

Founded in 1996 in Bridgehampton, N.Y.,

Hayground's children ages three to fifteen work in multi-age groupings. The school is based on a commitment to the intellectual integrity of every child, art as a way of life and multi-culturalism in the deepest sense. "When We Were Young" celebrates those commitments, while raising funds for scholarships.

The performance will be followed by a fiesta with food donated by a group of local restaurants and samba/salsa music by SOLYMAR. "When We Were Young" is sponsored by HBO, Louise and Len Riggio and Bookhampton.

Kites

120 feet long from nose to tail and 20 feet wide. I've also got up over there, as you can see, a great 10 foot wide flying condor, and a Limited Edition Hawaiian Cloud Bird over there, designed by George Peters, who is famous for his colors."

"Do you fly kites competitively?" I asked.

"Oh yes. In Newport, Rhode Island, there are several big kite flying contests every summer. I enter almost all of them."

"What brings you down here?"

"I just got married. My wife's sister has a house here and she knew about the kite fly and invited us down for a week."

"Where does she live?"

"Oh, one of these towns here."

Here is a complete report on this year's kite fly, as written by Dan Sirkin, who was also a volunteer for Dan's Papers at this event.

Categories and winners went as follows: Most Newsworthy Kite- Robert Achs, Oldest Kite Flyer- Stanley Cohen, Youngest Kite Flyer- Kevin Higgins, Funniest Kite- Thomas Patterson, Funniest Kite- Luke Licata, Most Futuristic Kite- Christopher Liebling, Most Destructive- Christian Battaglia, Highest Flying Kite- Mark and Jordan White, Lowest Flying Kite- Arnaldo Ramos, Best Homemade Kite- Jackie Leopold, Most Colorful Kite- Mary Pat Greeff, Most Exotic Kite- Jack and Charlie Bushnell, Most Nautical Kite- Rachel Achs-Gallon, Most Geometrical Kite- Mark Ryan, Tiniest Kite- Jamie Nelson, Kite Made of the Most Materials- Jamie Nelson, Scariest Kite- John Linquito, Most Beautiful Kite- Joseph Shuster, and Longest Tailed- Ken Martinez.

The category for Kite Made of The Most Natural Materials was changed to Cutiest Kite Fliers at the site of the contest, because of the shortage of naturally made kites and the abundance of cute fliers. The prize went to Keith, Will and Allana. The Ugliest Kite, now to be known as the Least Attractive Kite was given to Patricia Carroll, and the Kite in Best Costume went to Banjo Jack Williams, who came in a great costume of his own.

The prize donations this year were fabulous. Thank you to all our sponsors, Deep Hallow Ranch, Sagg Main Store, Hampton Jitney, World Pie, Razzano's, Long Island Game Farm, Sedutto, Rotations, and the Sagg Main Store, just to name a few.

This years Kite Fly was one of the best ever! And it couldn't have been such a success without everyone's help, and the terrific turnout. So, congratulations to the winners and thanks to everyone.

CLASSIC CARS WITH BOB GELBER

TOPLESS

Convertibles. Nobody really needs a convertible...and yet they are highly prized as fresh air contraptions by the non-car oriented public as well as by auto collectors and car enthusiasts. Why? Is it the message that a convertible is for the young, and no matter what your age, you'll look and feel younger in a ragtop? What is the magnetism of a car without a roof?

Sex. The real and simple secret to the appeal of the topless car is just that it's sexier than other cars. In fact I'm surprised some auto maker doesn't produce a low and swoopy convertible and call it the V-8 Viagra. Sexy convertibles, past and present. What other cars could one own for a pleasant summer's drive around the Hamptons?

When it comes to pure sex appeal, you can't beat a JAGUAR...of any vintage. It all started with the SS100 which was produced in the late thirties. You might find a good one today in the collector car market for about $150,000. One of the prettiest cars of all time was the Jaguar XK, which first saw production in 1949. A good useable 120 "Roadster" with a hideaway canvas top (the convertible was a different model with a large bulbous top that did not disappear) could be had today for between $35,000 and $50,000. However, for pure undiluted sex appeal and performance, you can't beat the Jaguar XK-E, that was introduced to the world in 1964. Good rustfree "ER" convertibles today can be had for about the same price as XK-120s. If your taste is for air conditioning, power steering, super stereo and newness, there's the current production Jaguar XK-8 convertible. This car is a modern rendition of the 1964 XK-E and has the same styling but better all around.

clever Mercedes SLK is really a rock solid coupe, with a folding hardtop that magically disappears into the rear trunk. They are all emotionally based upon famous models in their past. The Porsche bares a resemblance to an old 1956 Porsche RSK race car. Very few were built, mainly for racing. James Dean was killed on a country road in a similar car. As collector cars, RSK's are really expensive at about $250,000, but there are many alternatives to a vintage Porsche race car. The 1955-1958 Porsche Speedster has always been a crowd pleaser. Unfortunately, it is so desireable that today it is fetching between $35,000 and $50,000 on the collector car market. I personally would go after a 1964-65 Porsche 356 SC Cabriolet. These cars are the last of the 356's, all beautifully built (though rust prone) and much better cars than the early Porsches.

The Mercedes SLK takes styling cues from its historic past, mainly the 1955 300SL series of motorcars. Frankly, except for these retro design features (the hood bulges and side vents) the car has absolutely nothing in common with the old fire-breathing 300SL's of yore. Don't get me wrong, the new Mercedes SLK is a great car, and certainly a future classic, but the 1955 SL's were some of the greatest sports cars of all time. A 1956 300 SL convertible has a present collector value performance. Pricey at approximately $80,000, but a future classic, especially if it's a Jaguar, is never bargain priced.

Then we have the terrific topless teutonic trio: the Porsche Boxter, the Mercedes SLK and the BMW Z-3. These cuties burst upon the world scene almost simultaneously, to the applause of auto enthusiasts everywhere. Starting at about $40,000 each, they are all new retro definitions of a sporting convertible. The past, mainly the 1955 300SL series of motorcars. Frankly, except for these retro design features (the hood bulges and side vents) the car has absolutely nothing in common with the old fire-breathing 300SL's of yore. Don't get me wrong, the new Mercedes SLK is a great car, and certainly a future classic, but the 1955 SL's were some of the greatest sports cars of all time. DAN TRAVELS*Cars (Continued from previous page) of a little over $150,000. This is a great convertible that I feel has always been underpriced, mainly because its esteem has been challenged by its sibling with weird doors: the 300SL Gullwing coupe.

The BMW is styled like an updated 1957 BMW 507 convertible. Very few 507's were ever sold in the fifties, because they were priced the same as Mercedes 300SL Gullwings, and frankly didn't have the same pedigree or performance.

Probably the most retro looking car of the lot is the Mazda Miata. Unashameably looking like a 1962 British Lotus Elan roadster, this Japanese convertible is a bargain basement sports car, with all the performance and handling (the best shifting stick shift in the world!) one could desire for $20,000.

Another relative bargain is the newish Chevy Corvette. For $40,000 one gets Ferrari looks and performance. With this new model, the Chevrolet Corvette has finally metamorphosed into a world class high performance sports car.

There are many other convertibles in the marketplace. I have a soft spot in my heart for the new Chrysler four seat convertible. There is simply no prettier large convertible produced in the world for under $25,000.

Then we have the heavy off-road hitters; the cult classic-Jeep Wrangler, the hyper-macho Land Rover Defender and if you dare- the wacky and wild Hummer convertible.

Put on your shades, splatter your forehead with SPF 2000 sunscreen, and get a deep tan as you motor into some deep curves. Shrug off that SUV armor and smell the roses.

A great way to tour the Hamptons is in an easy, breezy convertible.

Also this week don't miss Amy Grant performing as part of the Today Show Summer Concert Series 2000 at 8 a.m. outside their studio window in Rockefeller Plaza on August 11. Frankly, my dear, you will give a damn about this...The Bryant Park Summer Film Festival 2000 will present the film classic, Gone With The Wind, in two parts on August 14 and 15 at sunset at 42nd and Sixth Avenue (call 212-512-5700 for more information).

Why not take advantage of the nice weather (fleeting through it may be) and dine al fresco before attending one of the many outdoor events listed above? Here are a few suggestions which offer the best in patio, garden, sidewalk and terrace dining around town: Esca (402 W. 43rd Street at Ninth Avenue, 212-564-7272) Mario Batali's new garden dining will feature Italian seafood specialties with a main course averaging at $19. Tabla Bread Bar (11 Madison Avenue, 212-889-0667) no reservations patio restaurant features dangerously large (and lethal) pitchers of rhubarb-spiked sangria which are the ideal complement to many of the dishes on chef Floyd Cardoz's new menu. Prices average $18 for the main course. AZ (21 W. 17th Street, 212-691-8888) boasts a third floor garden dining room on the roof with chef Patricia Yeo's Cal-Asian fusion cuisine—a retractable glass ceiling keeps you dry in stormy weather. Prix-fixe dinners average $52. Cello (53 E. 77th Street, 212-517-1200) has some of the most ethereal seafood preparations in New York and all can be enjoyed in a lovely backyard garden setting; prix fixe dinners are $96. Estiatorio Milos (125 W. 55th Street, 212-245-7400) calls his outdoor seating area a theretro, Greek for outdoor theatre, but it is in reality a sidewalk café. Their specialty is grilled seafood but they also offer an affordable menu of tapas-style bites. Barbetta (321

TRIVIA QUESTION:

Who donated the fountain in the Plaza of Lincoln Center?

Answer to last week's trivia question: Central Park was so named because it runs along the City's central water works line.

review: dinner with friends

By Jan Silver

If you are curious about why some couples live happily-ever-after and some don't, playwright Donald Margulies offers a few insights in Dinner with Friends, his play at Off Broadway's Variety Arts Theatre. Two couples in their forties, all longtime friends, experience emotional upheaval when one couple decides to divorce.

The story begins with Karen and Gabe, who meet in their early twenties, fall in love, marry, work together as food writers, have children and acquire homes in Connecticut and Martha's Vineyard. Karen and Gabe introduce their friends Beth, an artist, and Tom, a businessman. The second couple court, marry, have children, etc. After dinner one evening at Karen and Gabe's house, with Tom not present, Beth breaks down and tells Karen that she and Tom are separating.

Karen at first is disbelieving. She strives to be upbeat and self-assured, to control everything in her life. Gabe is a tad more introspective about love and marriage.

He takes a practical approach. "Marriages all go through a basic wretchedness," he comments.

Divorce is like a death in the family. It affects those close to the couple. Karen and Gabe become scared and confused. They run through the gamut of emotions that such a revelation brings up: It must all be a mistake. Perhaps I can help. What if it happens to me?

In our society, there are hidden personal needs as well as outward social pressures which lead to coupling. And sometimes the coupling does not work. Tom tells Gabe that he is deeply lonely in his marriage. "If I made a mistake, do I just have to live with it?" Tom asks.

Donald Margulies has plausible answers for these questions. With a few surprise twists, he briefly shines a light into the emotional depths of these four showing why one couple could nurture their relationship while the other could not.

The four actors at the June performance I attended connect seamlessly and naturally. Matthew Arkin as Gabe is poignant in his struggle to understand what is happening to his friends and the implications for his own marriage. Lisa Emery, as Karen, tries to maintain her usual life and avoid the questions that a friend's divorce raises. Carolyn McCormick shows Beth's unfulfilled needs in her marriage, while Jonathan Walker, as Tom, moves from confusion and anger to happiness in his life.

Donald Margulies has written a realistic, slice-of-life comedy which Daniel Sullivan directs with sensitivity for each character's inner turmoil. Set designer Neil Patel creates light, airy sets for Gabe and Karen's homes and darker interiors for Tom and Beth. The settings are enhanced by Rui Rita's lighting and Peter Fitzgerald's sound. The music and sound score by Michael Roth help anchor the time and place of the action. Dinner with Friends won the Pulitzer Prize this year.

Formula I Kickoff Event In The Hamptons

What better way to promote the arrival of such the prestigious, glamorous, primarily European sport of Formula I racing than to throw a high profile event in the Hamptons? With Formula I coming to the famed Indy Motor Speedway track in September 2000 , and as many of our readers are avid followers of the sport, Tag Heuer will unveil an actual Formula I car during a special kick-off event on August 12 from 6:30-10 p.m. at 290 Ocean Drive in Bridgehampton. Tag Heuer has aligned itself with Hugo Boss, Mercedes Benz and Finlandia to host this exclusive kickoff event.

The event will be attended by celebrities and socialites, as well as business, art and media elite with world-renowned musician Wyclef Jean performing and state of the art automobile simulators. It is rumored to be the biggest and most exclusive event of the season.

Each year nearly one billion television viewers watch the race transfixed which has propelled Formula I competition to the colossal size and status it now enjoys. Formula I racing is one of the world's fastest sports and with speed trials, pole position assignments, pit stops, tire changes, refueling, etc. -it was virtually impossible for the spectator to immediately know the lead in the competition until the advent of a revolutionary change in timekeeping ability introduced in 1992 by Tag Heuer. This allowed them to measure, analyze and simultaneously transmit all essential information to scoreboards and television screens. Now Formula I could be followed by everyone at the same time!

Today, in addition to its official timekeeping role, Tag Heuer is a sponsor of the McLaren team whose car will be on display all evening at the kickoff event.

Shop 'til You Drop ...With Maria Tennariello

I finally put the umbrella away and enjoyed the nice weather. I hope the next time I have to use an umbrella again will be on the beach. My mom, sister Paula, niece Christine and great nephew Kevin came out for a visit this week for the Dan's Papers Annual Kite Fly. Before we flew those kites though, we shopped our hearts out.

Starting out in Sag Harbor, we stopped into a brand new shop that has transformed the main floor of a charming village house on Main Street into a designer haven. Selling everything from clothing to bags to sunglasses, leather goods, jewelry, belts, shoes and accessories, You should know that much of the merchandise sold in this shop will also be offered for sale online. MINT, is the first designer consignment shop anywhere in the Hamptons. Offering men and women's wear, MINT sells the A through Z's of designer merchandise, right through from Armani to Zegna. The top brands include: Fendi, Gucci, Prada, Miu Miu, Louis

Vuitton, Chanel, Hermes, Dior, Dolce & Gabbana, Helmut Lang and Alexander McQueen. Michael Sheldon and Serran Rogers are the owners of this great shop, both of whom have years of experience in the fashion industry. If consigners are feeling charitable, they can request that their portion of the sale be donated to the charity of their choice. Stop in and say hi! You'll be glad you did.

Entertaining? Well, checkout Hedges on Main Street in Sag Harbor for tableware, gifts, antiques and interior design.

There will be an exclusive showing "Trunk Show" on Friday, August 11 from 2 to 6 p.m. of Daniel Swarovski Crystal Eyewear at Richard D. Leahy Opticians on Main Street in Southampton. Daniel Swarovski eyewear is seen at the Hampton Classic also. Don't miss this one!

Ah...J. Crew Warehouse Sale is back in town!

Running from August 3 through the 13, is free and open to the public at Southampton College on Montauk Highway in Southampton. Fashions in the warehouse sale are from the pages of the J. Crew catalog discounted up to 70%. And yes...they will be accepting all major credit cards. Have a ball!

Even though it's been a muggy and sticky summer, love is still in the air. And...what better gift to give someone than the gift of "Love". At Gallery Eclectic on Main Street in Southampton, Catherine Angiel's exquisite heart-shaped diamond pendant on a chain of little round diamonds set in platinum or white gold are featured here at this exquisite boutique. This beautiful pendant and necklace set that sparkles like the stars reflected on the ocean in moonlight. Show your love with the "Love" diamond pendant that starts at $1,273 and the "Love" necklace starting at $4,000. Right now, Gallery Eclectic is having its annual summer sale, with 10% off all stock jewelry items, including "Love," through August 21.

While you're marking your calendars, mark this one...Bambini Soul, the hot new Italian-made baby product line, is looking for the cutest beach baby in the Hamptons. This lucky little bundle will win a year's

ART COMMENTARY

With Marion Wolberg Weiss

ERNST, GOLDEN, GUERVITZ, WRIGHT AT CLAYTON LIBERATORE

It's difficult to find a connective thread among the exhibiting artists currently at Bridgehampton's Clayton Liberatore Gallery, an impression that is not meant to be critical per se. Because each group of works is very imagery-conscious, it might have been more effective to feature less artists or at least include one with a minimal approach; such a presentation provides visual balance. Simply put, the show as a whole is too "busy" and disparate.

Regardless, each individual exhibit has much to contribute. Amy Ernst's computer collages are just another way in which Ms. Ernst has continually experimented over the years, and it's always a pleasure to see what she will come up with. This time, as usual, her expertise with texture and a "painterly" style gives eloquence and meaning to her classical pieces: "Verona's Lace," "Petrus Ladder," and "Bosch Revisited."

This critic's favorite is "Alaskan Renaissance" where the classical and modern merge; the figure in close-up recalls both a person and an Alaskan animal. It's clear that Ms. Ernst's works are more metaphorical and less psychological or personal here than previous shows have indicated.

Ms. Golden's "Swimmer" series is an evolutionary one, especially if the viewer is familiar with the artist's previous works (on view in a recent New York retrospective). While she also has a penchant for "painterly" elements that dates back some thirty years, there's a potent sensual quality which pervades all of Ms. Golden's art (even during the 1960s when it was considered controversial to paint male genitalia). These works, among Ms. Golden's best, were not merely sexy, however. They made a strong metaphorical statement about the "landscape" of the male body.

The landscape in Ms. Golden's "Swimmer" series is not as overtly metaphorical, although it still contains elements of overlapping colors/patterns. There are more ironic themes at work here, however: while a child and her mother, for example, seem to represent a cohesive pair, they are looking "off-screen." They do not relate to each other in any way.

Bernard Gurevitz' landscapes are more objective in their points-of-view than Ms. Golden's works, yet his passion for both the East and West Coasts is equally evident. A favorite is "Ocean Lane" which is not a landscape but features a La Jolla side street that captures its European flavor. Marjorie Wright's playful abstractions, resembling musical notes or alphabet letters, allow the viewer's imagination to run free with possible interpretations.

The show at Clayton Liberatore will be on view until August 27.

HONORING THE ARTIST: Lluis Ribas

What is it about a female figure on a beach that evokes so many positive metaphors? Is it the idea of purity, rebirth, and innocence which has served so many artistic and philosophical endeavors throughout the ages? Or do these images conjure up more personal memories and experiences?

Spanish painter Lluis Ribas employs all such metaphorical and personal references in his paintings and does them well—without a hint of sexism so often associated with the image of a sensual female body romping on the beach. There's a naturalism and spontaneity at work as well—another aspect that suggests Mr. Ribas is a different kind of painter, one who doesn't always use models to strike a self-conscious pose. There's also a commercialism lacking which also infers that Mr. Ribas isn't painting merely to please the public.

We try and imagine what kind of person Mr. Ribas is from his paintings, although such an endeavor certainly has its drawbacks. But imagine we must because the artist himself is unavailable for an interview, even one by phone, considering that he lives in Barcelona, Spain.

From the artist's sensitive treatment of women, we imagine a man who loves all kinds of people and who treats them with respect. We imagine a gracious and warm individual, too, although this observation is based admittedly on a stereotypical idea of Mediterranean residents (a fact born out, however, by the critic's adored Spanish aunt and cousins who live in Madrid).

Other aspects of Mr. Ribas' art also suggest his demeanor, although some particular paintings are not being exhibited at East Hampton's Wally Findlay Gallery like his cover piece is. For example, there are portraits from Morocco reinforcing Mr. Ribas' connection with people from all cultures, his attention to design detail, and his ability to see beyond surface reality.

Because some paintings are posed while others depict inhabitants naturally engaged in everyday activities, like selling wares or relaxing at a cafe, we can also assume that Mr. Ribas has a spontaneous nature, one that doesn't necessarily follow strict rules.

Simply put, we imagine Mr. Ribas to be both a passionate and gentle man—a man who speaks to and for everyone, no matter what their cultural background.

—Marion Wolberg Weiss

Take Five 2000 with Jan Silver

This mid-August week offers good theater, outstanding classical and popular music, a few films, several interesting lectures and lots of benefits. Cabaret star Michael Feinstein performs and then Tony Walton is saluted at Guild Hall, East Hampton, the Bridgehampton Chamber Music Festival has a second week of outstanding concerts, the Hamptons Shakespeare Festival continues in Montauk and Bay Street Theatre begins previews of You Can't Take It With You. The big sports event this weekend is the Mercedes Benz Polo Challenge match at the Bridgehampton Polo Club on Saturday at 4 p.m. (raindate Sunday, 2 p.m.; open admission $10). NOTE: The first Hamptons Comedy Festival starts next Thursday.

Some of the benefits this weekend: "An Evening of Jazz and Dance" for Boys Harbor (East Hampton) on Saturday; "DVine Art" art & wine auction for the East End Arts Council on Saturday (Duck Walk Vineyard, Water Mill); "A Taste of Summer" wine, jazz and tango at Channing Daughters Winery (Bridgehampton) for the Bridgehampton Chamber Music Festival; New World Symphony at Villa Maria (Water Mill) on Saturday; Tooth Fairies Birthday Party with Melissa Joan Hart (for Pediatric Dental Fund of the Hamptons) on Sunday in East Hampton.

THEATER

The Hamptons Shakespeare Festival's production of the comedy Much Ado About Nothing continues at Theodore Roosevelt County Park in Montauk. The show plays Wednesday through Sunday, 7:30 p.m. outdoors, but come early and bring a picnic dinner plus sweaters. A voluntary contribution of $10 per person is suggested and the show is suitable for children. On Tuesday, August 15, members of the HSF company will present a new-play reading at 7:30 p.m. For more information, call the Festival office at (631) 267-0105.

The Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center

presents Tovah Feldshuh in her one-woman show Tallulah Tonight! on Saturday at 8:30 p.m. (for tickets, call 631-288-1500). Montauk Theatre Productions' Always...Patsy Cline is so popular that performances will continue through this weekend (call 631-668-5656 for tickets). East Hampton's Guild Hall brings in the Off Broadway Abingdon Theater Company on Monday for a staged reading of John Petrick's drama The Appearance of Impropriety (7 p.m. curtain; tickets $12-$15 at the door).

Sag Harbor's Bay Street Theatre begins previews of its final summer presentation, the classic Moss Hart/George F. Kaufman comedy You Can't Take It With You next Wednesday. Performances are Wednesday through Sunday. For tickets, call the box office at 631-725-9500.

MUSIC

The Bridgehampton Chamber Music Festival continues its second week with a benefit concert at Channing Daughters Winery on Saturday featuring wine, hors d'oeuvres, jazz and tango ($100 donation). The 6:30 p.m. Sunday program at the Bridgehampton Presbyterian Church (now air conditioned!) features the contemporary music of Michael Kamen, Paul Moravec and Adam Guettel with guest singer-actress Audra McDonald. Next Wednesday evening, the fare is Mozart, Copland and Schumann, and Thursday at 5 p.m. is a children's concert. Tickets are $25 adults, $20 seniors, $10 children. For seat reservations or benefit tickets, call the Festival office at (631) 537-6368.

East Hampton's Guild Hall brings in cabaret star Michael Feinstein and the Copa Cat Pack Big Band on Friday and Saturday night. Feinstein is a master of American pop classics, especially the songs of the Gershwin's and Jule Styne. On Sunday, the American Musical Theater Salutes continue with Tony Award-winning set designer Tony Walton's many shows (A Funny Thing Happened..., 1776, Guys and Dolls, Chicago, Annie Get Your Gun, etc.) Lee Davis will host the musical evening featuring Broadway performers Brent Barrett, Kady Huffman and Jim Followell. For tickets ($28-$30), call the box office at 631-324-4050.

The Westhampton Beach Performing Arts Center has a hot blues and rock double-bill on Friday. The Todd Wolfe Blues Project and the Alvin Youngblood Hart Band will share the stage beginning at 8:30 p.m. For tickets ($20-$50), call 631-288-1500. The WPBX-FM jazz series continues at Bridgehampton's Wild Rose on Sunday night with the classic and progressive music of the Lou Garrett Quartet (at 7:45 and 10 p.m., $25). The Perlman Music Program for exceptionally gifted music students has nightly informal concerts at its Shelter Island campus (no admission charge). The annual benefit concert and dinner is this Saturday. For a schedule, call (631) 749-0740. Canio's Books, Sag Harbor, has Steve Shaunessey and Mike Gari playing be-bop jazz on Saturday at 6 p.m. (no admission charge). The Jewish Center of the Hamptons has the a cappella ensemble Vocolot singing folk, rock, jazz and cabaret music in concert on Saturday at 8 p.m. (call 631-324-9858 for tickets).

Mellow music favorites at the clubs and restaurants: Bridgehampton—rock & roll with the Lone Sharks on Thursday at the Wild Rose; Dennis Raffelock Trio plays soft jazz and pop standards on Friday at Bridges, 7 to 10 p.m., followed by a dance party; Kipling's Trio plays from the pop standards/jazz canon at Kipling's; Montauk—Stefanie Cardinali, Paul Gene and Rick

The program begins with a light supper and drinks at 7 p.m. followed by the entertainment. Tickets ($15-$100) are available at all BookHampton stores or by calling 631-329-5480.

Ray Charles, Billy Joel, Peter Maas, Bud Harrelson, Dave DeBusschere and a host of other performers and sports stars have donated artwork and painted wine bottles for the "D'Vine Art" show at the Duck Walk Vineyards, Water Mill, on Saturday to benefit the East End Arts Council. There will be wine and music from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. followed by the celebrity auction. Admission is a $55 donation; call 631-727-0900.

The New World Symphony will give a fund-raising concert followed by dinner at the Villa Maria, Water Mill, on Saturday. The evening begins with cocktails at 7 p.m. Tickets start at $250; call 800-597-3331.

The Tooth Fairies Birthday Party, a delightful event for children and parents, has Sabrina the Teenage Witch (Melissa Joan Hart) as a guest this year. The "Hocus Pocus" party will have a magic show, tattoo parlor, dinner, and children's games from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Silberkleit home, East Hampton, on Sunday. The party benefits the Pediatric Dental Fund of the Hamptons and is underwritten by Colgate toothpaste. For tickets ($25 children, $50 adults), call 631-329-5480.

Guy de Fraumeni's HOLLYWOODin The HamptonsMORE LOVE AND XXXX'S FROM EUROPE

This early morning at Comacina on Lake Como, the Italian-pink clouds are wrung out grey remnants of a copy-cat storm following the tempestuous, hurricane force assault on Britain by the European premiere of The Perfect Storm. Publicity people deluged the island, battering Birmingham with crass Hollywood drenchings of Andre's Cold Duck and Atilla the Hun's sensitivity. George Clooney, the star, appeared looking less kempt than the washed-up, swamped boat captain he portrays in the movie. The Brit Press are still blotting their starched shirt fronts and blow-drying their sense of conventionality and readying for the attack of the X-Men and the possible demolition of their true reigning

X-Men and Harry Potter, The 1st
(Soon To Be A Movie)

Monarch and [suddenly] International Phenomenon, Harry Potter . . . soon to become a major motion picture from Warner Bros . . . planning for it to be another franchise-fraught merchandising mammoth, like their Lucas film Star Wars.

POTTER POTTINESS XCESSIVE

Little Harry, the book-wormy, fictional hero, the product of thirty four year old author J.K. Rowling, may soon be the top action hero (with thick, round horn-rimmed glasses) movie of tomorrow. With enemies like Voldemort and the Death Eaters and characters like Nearly Headless Nick, Bloody Baron, Peeves and Fat Friar . . . the Harry Potter adventures for classy, potty-trained readers, sound amazingly like the Marvel Comic Book series X-MEN, initiated in 1963 to battle the moneyed success of the likes of old favorites, Superman and Batman, etc. etc. Now, as "brought to life" on the big "Movies for Minor Mentalities" screen, the X-Men and (busty X-WOMEN) are like all the rest . . . only very weirdly different from each other . . . like Forrest Gump's box of assorted chocolates, except that all are a little nutty.

X-MEN SPECIAL FX - AWE FULL
OTHERWISE - AWFUL -XTRANEIOUS

The sweet (and sabre)-toothed M&M's (Minor Mentalities), will perhaps find a place in their hearts for the Mutants, a growing new X-breed of "people" who for instance, grow sabre teeth . . . his name is Sabertooth, (get it?) performed by wrestler, Tyler Mane. Wrestling with her role as Storm, is Halle Berry (in a white fright wig) . . . she can create storms . . . (now, have you got it?) Starring (sort of) is Hugh Jackman as Wolverine. He is furry and is probably the most convincing of the misfits. His claws are razor sharp "Scissor-hands" metal that are retractable. He loves Rogue, Anna Paquin, who saps the life out of any sap who gets close to her. Her performance is also sappy. Very lively, however, is Rebecca Romijn-Stamos, who can jump around like a grasshopper and can look like anyone (or thing) she likes. Which makes you wonder why she goes around with thick blue paint and fish scales (in needy places) covering her nude, va-va-Voom Playboy body. There's a chap named, Toad, with a mile-long tongue that does things as unbelievable as porn stars. There is Cyclops with the eyes . . . and so on. Strangest of all . . . Framke Janssen, is allowed to be her charming, attractive self as Jean Gray, a Normal with oodles of compassion for Mutants . . . good Mutants, that is.

G-RATED X-MEN AND X-RATED X-MEN

Good Mutants are really good. They're for brotherhood and peace and will fight like heck for it. They are led by Xavier, Patrick Stewart, also allowed to be himself. But, he is fishier looking than ever though extremely benign. He thinks Mutants and so-called Normals can co-exist. But Magneto, Xavier's nemesis, had his family torn away from him by the Nazi's, (and you thought this movie wasn't serious) and knows there can only be trouble. He ought to know he's making it for the Normals and the X-Men. In a not necessarily electrifying performance, Ian McKellen gives Magneto some brio with rolling R's and rolling eyes. Beyond that, I am mortified to find him in this Frankensteinian role . . . really not enjoying it too much. On the other hand, the movie itself is decidedly joyless and claw footed when the special effects department is in repose so, he collected his money, hit his mark and did the job.

X-MEN VS. XEMPLARY HARRY

Europe holds its breath waiting to find out if Harry's villain, Lord Voldemort, be as rotten as Magneto? Will Harry's "Hogwarts" (School for Sorcerers) be as dumbly pictured as Xavier's School for the Gifted (Mutants)? Will Ms. Rowlings "Muggles" (the Non-Wizards) be as vacantly lifeless as the Normals in X-Men? Does Harry's "FIREBALL" broom go as fast as Cyclop's jets? Do the Mutants have forces as deadly as Harry's "Imperious" "Cruciatu" and "Avada Kedavra" curses? Yikes! and Omigosh!! There's another storm brewing!

Stuart White Can Liven Your Party

After fifteen years of "almosts" (almost bought this, almost bought that), Carmen and Stuart White finally discovered their oceanfront house in Westhampton Beach, fulfilling a lifelong dream. The "Summer White House" is already the scene of many interesting get-togethers as the Whites become more involved in the Hamptons' social calendar. Stuart and Carmen both maintain busy careers in Manhattan. She is in management at NBC News, and he is a Vice Chairman of Steven Scott Orchestras, Inc. and President of Steven Scott Productions.

Founded in 1958, Steven Scott Orchestras, under the helm of Chairman Joey Mills, employs a staff of fifty. With thirty in-house orchestras, specialty acts, D.J.'s, etc., Steven Scott services 3,000 clients annually. The company provides music, entertainment, special events and conference planning to well known corporate, associations and non-profit organizations, as well as select clientele. Corporate clients include New York Life, Met Life, AT&T, General Motors, among others. Featured artists presented by Steven Scott include Jay Leno, Aretha Franklin, Natalie Cole, Donna Summer, and Tony Bennett, to name a few.

Stuart is a second-generation orchestra leader and regularly conducts his twelve or more musicians, including the world-renowned Cuban-born percussionist, Candido. He has produced and performed for Hampton clients including Ellin and Ron Delsener's daughter's wedding, Billy Joel's 50th birthday, the Parrish Art Museum, West Hampton Synagogue, Nurit Kahane and Werner Haase, and recently, the wedding of Michael Gelman (Live! with Regis and Kathie Lee) to CBS producer Laurie Hibberd.

Stuart's accomplishments include performing at two Inaugurations: President Clinton and President Nixon. He also performed for Ronald and Nancy Reagan on the night Reagan announced his run for the Presidency. Stuart's productions include the U.S. Bicentennial Celebration, thirteen National Football League Friday Night Super Bowl parties and the 100th Anniversary of The New York Times, which featured a hundred violins at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Stuart is currently the Music Director of The Plaza Hotel, The New York Hilton (27 years), The Mark, and the four-star Garden City Hotel.

Aside from their business responsibilities, both Stuart and Carmen share of love of food and are members of the Confrerie de la Chaine des Rotisseurs, Brotherhood of The Vine, and the Order Mondial. In conjunction with the Chaine, Stuart chaired events in which he arranged for New York's leading chefs to cook in private homes to benefit the March of Dimes. Stuart's additional charity work includes the National Conference of Christian and Jews (Vice Chairman) the Crohn's & Colitis Foundation, the U.J.A. Federation and the Israeli Museum. He has also received the "Good Scout" award from the Boy Scouts of America for outstanding service.

Known as Citizen Cane on the web, Stuart is an avid collector of walking sticks and possesses one of the world's largest private collections, some of which have been featured on the Today Show, and in numerous books and magazines. The Hamptons' lifestyle definitely suits him. He is in great shape after fifteen years of Yoga training and is a certified scuba diver, an avid gardener and loves deep-sea fishing. In fact, last summer, he landed a forty-one pound striped bass off a charter in Montauk. Stuart aims high whether in business or at play and is looking to catch an even bigger fish this season!

Websites To Liven Your Day

By Rachel Sokol

Use the internet to brighten up someone's day through interactive, personalized sites. Jazz up your e-mails and make your working days a bit cheerier with site surprises. Two of the most frequently visited "cyber-card" sites are Blue Mountain Arts (www.bluemountain.com) and the domain for Hallmark, the celebrated greeting card store ("chain" (www.hallmark.com)). Blue Mountain Arts allows you to send out cartoonish greeting cards for all occasions—including, "Sister's Day," "Friendship Day" and even "National Smile Week." One of the greatest offers on this site is that Blue Mountain Arts supplies a calendar of U.S. and International Holidays, in a variety of languages such as French, Spanish and Italian. Screensavers, cyber-invitations and express cards can be created on this site. But be warned—this site plays comical music, especially when the recipient picks up their card via the web, so lower your volume before retrieving or sending a card. Hallmark.com also allows you to send out free cyber cards through the internet, as well as placing orders for other gift items. A site similar to Blue Mountain is, Ecards (www.ecards.com). Ecards has more specified card creation choices, with categories as diverse as Back-To-School, Special Awards and, "I'm Sorry." To order personalized presents via the internet, check out www.personalize.com, and send off a personalized present to honor those special someones. This site provides unique personalized gifts for all occasions. Find an ideal gift by searching through a database by keyword or item number. Personalize.com has a great selection of children's gifts. But don't forget to pamper yourself, of course, via the internet. Zmedia.com (www.zmedia.com) features a bunch of free stuff you can get sent to through e-mail. Send yourself weekly jokes, music reviews, quotes, health and beauty news and much more. Zmedia allows you to check the boxes of free cyber-mail that interest you, from sports to coupons to, "Word of the Day." Pretty interesting stuff, but it may clog up your cyber-mail if you get a little e-mail crazy. And finally, if you think you're not crafty enough to make someone a gift, think again. With www.celebratesomebody.com (www.celebratesomebody.com), you can create a special-occasion gift book that can be printed from any ink or laser printer. CelebrateSomebody.com brings together family and friends to create a memory book in honor of the people you love. The Celebration Journal, which can be printed from your own printer, is an ideal gift book for all holidays. On the site, family and friends can record their personalized messages to be printed into a lasting momento. The site allows you to customize your book, such as design, size, headings and title pages. So, use these sites to show your appreciation for someone else. Log on and brighten up somebody's day. They'll appreciate it.

silvia lehrer's cooking column

Sitting around a patio surrounded by a field of poppies recently, three of my friends were discussing which of my recipes had found its way into their "used-all-the-time-for-summer-entertaining" plans. One of my good buddies suggested that I write a column featuring each of the friends' absolutely, positively, most favorite summer recipe I had shared with them. Their choices delighted me as I must admit these recipes are favorites of mine, too.

Betty Groden's choice of melon salad vinaigrette brought back memories of my studies at the Cordon Bleu in London many years ago. With Debbie Pitts' selection of poulet de Bresse grille, grilled, butterflied chicken marinated in a honey mustard dressing, I recalled the trip we made to Talloires, France, and the fabled Pere Bis restaurant, in the late seventies. Sherry Harris' pick, Cassata, the no-bake dessert from Sicily, made me nostalgic for that fabulous island.

Betty, Debbie and Sherry promise that you too will enjoy preparing and serving these two summer favorites.

MELON SALAD WITH HERB VINAIGRETTE

An unusual and colorful combination with the fresh taste of summer.

Serves 10-12

1 ripe melon, cantaloupe, honeydew or casaba
1 cucumber, rinsed and thinly sliced
1 pound ripe cherry or pear tomatoes
Coarse salt

Herb Vinaigrette

2 teaspoons finely chopped Italian flat-leaf parsley
2 tablespoons chopped fresh mint
2 teaspoons snipped chives
1 1/2 teaspoons fresh thyme leaves
1/2 teaspoon coarse salt
Freshly ground pepper

1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce
2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
1/3 cup light olive oil

1. Halve melon: remove and discard seeds. Prepare melon balls with melon scoop. Transfer to a strainer over a bowl and set aside to drain.

2. Spread cucumber slices in a single layer on a large dinner plate and sprinkle with salt. Cover with another plate and refrigerate with a weight on top (heavy coffee can, etc.) Let stand for one hour or so, for cucumbers to exude juices. Rinse and drain cucumbers in a colander, then transfer to a clean kitchen towel to absorb excess moisture. Set aside.

3. Plunge cherry tomatoes in boiling water for 10 seconds, working with a few at a time. Remove with slotted spoon and slip off skins with the tip of a paring knife.

4. Combine melon balls, cucumber slices and cherry tomatoes in a mixing bowl. If refrigerated several hours or overnight, be sure to drain off and discard accumulated liquid from bowl. Ingredients should be as dry as possible when mixed with the dressing.

5. Prepare Herb Vinaigrette: In a mixing bowl, combine all ingredients except oil and stir to mix. Gradually add oil in a thin steady stream until mixture is thoroughly blended. Taste to adjust seasoning.

To Serve: Carefully mix fruits and vinaigrette and toss lightly up to one hour ahead. Transfer to a serving bowl. Serve with thin slices of crusty bread, heated before serving, if desired.

POULET DE BRESSE GRILLE

A succulent honey-glazed charred chicken from Pere Bis, a Michelin Guide three-star restaurant in Talloires, France.
Serves 6-8

2 3-3 1/2 pound chickens
Coarse salt

Deviling Sauce

2-3 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1/2 cup grainy Dijon mustard
1/4 cup honey
1 tablespoons lemon juice
Freshly ground pepper
1/2 cup extra-virgin olive oil
Watercress for garnish, optional

CHEF SPOTLIGHT

Andrew Engle of The Laundry: Andrew Engle earned his chef whites from The St. Augustine Institute of Culinary Arts in Florida. Past experience includes working under executive chef Arnaud Daugin in France at Les Plantanes Restaurant, a Michelin 2-star restaurant specializing in classical Basque and new southwest French cuisine, three years at the Montauk Yacht Club and a stint at the highly acclaimed Oceana in Manhattan.

James Carpenter of Della Femina: James Carpenter graduated from Johnson and Wales College and honed his culinary skills for several years down south. Carpenter then returned to New York and was instrumental in the opening of Savanna's in Southampton, serving as sous chef for the restaurant's first two seasons. For the past three years, he has worked at Della Femina and is now the restaurant's chef de cuisine. When he's not cooking, James likes to brew his own beer, tend his organic vegetable and herb garden and go out to eat.

SIGHTINGS... Lauren Hutton at the Paradise Café in Sag Harbor... Senate hopeful Rick Lazio and his wife breakfasting on French toast and an omelette at Westhampton's Crazy Dog... Kelly Klein stopped by Tsunami and 95 School Street to drum up support for her upcoming benefit Ride for Hope... Teri Hatcher and Steve Buscemi (separately) at Rowdy Hall's Sunday brunch.

The Seafood Barge

BY SHERIDAN SANSEGUNDO

It's going to take a pretty persuasive argument to convince anyone on the South Fork to travel to the North Fork for a meal at this time of the year.

Think of it as escaping from the South Fork lunacy and you might see it differently, because a trip to the Seafood Barge in Southold is worth it.

The unassuming building off Route 25 is charming inside, with a light-filled dining room, furnished in marine blue and white, overlooking Port of Egypt Marina with plenty of nautical comings and goings for amusement.

There are a few statutory plaster swordfish, but if you ignore them and concentrate more on the blue shirts of the elegantly attired and delightfully helpful waitstaff, the place verges on chic.

The Seafood Barge scores high on the simple charm of its decor, on service, on its delightful view, and, more important, on excellent food. But that isn't why I'm suggesting that you schlep all the way over there.

Wines By The Glass

At the Seafood Barge, 80 percent of its wine list is devoted to reasonably priced Long Island wines; there is a special list of Long Island library wines, from $40 to $120. Every one of its wines by the glass, which are clearly and sensibly described, comes from a local vineyard.

This gives diners a great chance to sample local wines, with each person trying a different one. We tried a superlative Bedell Cellars Reserve 1995 chardonnay and the first vintage merlot from Lieb Family Cellars. We could also have tried wines from Channing Daughters, Corey Creek, and Jamesport Vineyards.

Sweet White Crab

The menu, as you would expect from the restaurant's name, concentrates on seafood. Prices for appetizers start at $6 for chowders or a green salad and can go as high as $13 for a daily special of sea scallops in a chardonnay sauce over lobster risotto.

Pastas are $17 to $21. Entrees start at $15 for flounder and chips but most of them are $23 or $24, with the most expensive dish listed being filet mignon at $27. The Barge is on the North Fork, of course, where prices remain within the bounds of belief, but it is still a relief to see they are not sneaking those over-$30 plates onto the menu.

The three appetizers we tried could hardly have been improved upon, including crab cakes ($12) which were nothing but sweet white crab -- full of flavor, crisp, moist, four-star.

Not Overdone

To read of mussels being served in an aged black bean and basil cream sauce makes one pause. It sounds a bit odd, a bit too fancy. But do try them, because this is a great dish which will introduce you to new and subtle flavors.

Talking about new and subtle flavors, it is a fairly regular complaint these days from diners that restaurants, always seeking to outdo one another, sometimes overdo it in this department. I tried a salad at the Seafood Barge that seemed as if it might fall into that category: spinach, pear, crumbled blue cheese, toasted pine nuts, and a vinaigrette with little bits of bacon.

Not so -- it was perfect. The blue cheese was mild and the slivers of pear provided a sharp clean bite.

Wonderful Swordfish

Of the entrees we tried, the flounder and chips did well for the youngest members of our party. The waffle chips were good and the flounder was light, but let's be honest, flounder is the choice of people who don't really like fish. Why have a Diet Coke when there's good wine available?

Like, say, swordfish. It's served here in a green peppercorn sauce, accompanied by a fascinating five-potato hash and baby bok choy, and it's wonderful.

The seafood bouillabaisse ($20), served with just a little angel hair pasta and a good rich broth of tomato, leek, and fennel, was also good, though not quite in the same class.

A warm chocolate cake with whipped cream and fresh berries and a sharp, satiny Key Lime pie closed the book happily.

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

Chinda's is located on that long picturesque winding stretch of Noyac Road, a few miles west of the Sag Harbor bridge. Slow down and look for it, since it is modest in size and you might just whiz by. And don't be disappointed by its unimpressive facade: it's not run-of-the-mill, but a restaurant reported to serve some of the best Thai food on Long Island. What is impressive, as well, is the long family history that distinguishes it.

As we were told by Chinda on a previous visit, the restaurant was started about ten years ago—now eleven—by she and her three sisters all who are from Bangkok, Thailand. Her grandmother taught them to cook at an early age, and they also took special cooking courses in grade school and advanced grades as part of their routine education, which included sewing, dancing, and academic subjects as well. In addition, her sisters took more courses in restaurant cooking, sponsored by the Thai government. Chinda's is distinctly a family business, run by experts in the Thai culinary arts.

Chinda's

As before, Chinda made us feel as comfortable as members of her family. She again suggested some of her favorite recipes. We started with Thai spring rolls (also known as Thai Egg Rolls—$6.95, # 8 on the menu). It's a delicious concoction of bean thread, dried mushrooms, bamboo shoots, water chestnuts, and vegetables, deep fried in egg roll wrapper and served with a mild special sauce. It is not surprising that this delicacy is very much in demand for catered parties.

This was followed by a selection of three different soups, each priced at $8.95: Tom Yum Koong (shrimp with mushrooms, chili, lime juice, lemon grass and special sauce—#17 on the menu); Tom Yum Kai (chicken soup with similar ingredients—#18 on the menu); and Wonton Soup (Thai style, with pork, shrimp, and vegetables—#20 on the menu).

Sampling all of these, I found that #17 and #18 were similar in flavor, though one was basically a shrimp soup, the other chicken. If you order either of them and don't like a hot, snappy-sinus-clearing quality, ask for a mild version. Chinda will be glad to comply. According to my palate, the wonton soup was perfect!

By the way, I recall that on our previous visit we had the Kai Tom Kha soup—#19 on the menu, which was milder; the coconut milk added a soft touch, which was more to my liking.

Poultry was the next item. The 12 listed on the menu are all priced at $14.95. We selected Mus-Sa-Munn Kai, #34, consisting of chicken cooked with mus-sa-munn curry, coconut milk, potato, fresh peanuts and a milder curry. This really had character!

Next came seafood (all items priced at $15.95), and being a lover of stir fry, I went for Koong Pad Puk, # 63—a great combination of shrimp sauteed with baby sweet corn, broccoli and straw mushrooms in garlic sauce. Yum Yum! Fantastic! If you haven't had it, go for it!

Though we were bulging by this time, we couldn't resist an order of Planung (steamed bass), #68. And, of course, we must have noodles. So we ordered Pad Thai, #87, priced at $13.95, a blend of noodles sauteed with shrimp, egg, dry bean curd, ground peanuts and bean sprouts.

Now we really thought we had reached our limits. But when Chinda suggested sticky rice and mango—she said it was a traditional Thai dessert—we couldn't resist. And one of us—I suspect insatiable—wanted some key lime pie, as well.

As we left, I couldn't help but think I'd have to jog for at least a week and fast to get back to my trim athletic figure again. But what can you do when you're tempted by such special food?

If you're a gourmet hedonist, forget about a few extra pounds and give yourself a treat by buzzing out to Chinda's!

Chinda's is open seven days a week year' round, the kitchen from noon to 11:00 PM, the bar from noon to 4 a.m. As the menu states, "Portions to go are quite large for those of you who love to eat plenty of good Thai food. Enjoy!"

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

When my companion and I arrived at the restaurant on a sunny Sunday afternoon, we requested a table on the Main Deck, but were told that a Reggae Band was setting up there for a performance; so we were escorted to an inside table close to a window, where we could enjoy both our meal and the entertainment. And sure enough, while we were studying our menus the Main Deck became crowded with an appreciative audience, swaying to the beat of the music. But that's not all the Salty Dog has to offer.

Perhaps The Salty Dog got its name in honor of "the hearty seafaring men who set sail from Sag Harbor's port in quest of the great sperm whales." And, indeed, it has a rich historical heritage, as this reviewer learned when scanning a pamphlet handed to him by its owner Edward Burke, also known as "Judge Burke," who has been presiding over the Salt Dog for several years.

On the pebbled beach of Noyak Bay near the restaurant, "... in 1777 Lt Col. Jonathan Meigs brought his American raiders ashore late at night, after rowing across the North Fork, to attack Sag Harbor, destroy a dozen British supply ships and capture ninety of the enemy—an exploit that greatly boosted the morale of General George Washington's forces in their bitter battles to dislodge King George's redcoats from newly-declared U.S. free soil." (volume 7, Book One, Noyac, Sag Harbor, N.Y., Summer 1979).

But what does history have to do with food at The Salty Dog? Well, for one thing, the pamphlet indicated that fine food was served on the Main Deck, including a salad bar and late nite menu, piano bar entertainment and excellent facilities for business, socials, weddings and private parties. The Beach Deck, where one could enjoy the beach, sun and cocktails, was open daily for clams, hamburgers, and other tasty items.

The new Salty Dog, continuing in its impressive historical tradition and run by the Burke family—father, wife and two sons—is also a restaurant with a family-oriented menu, Edward Burke told us.

And when I said, "It's very much like an English Pub, he retorted, "No. It's an Irishman's dream."

One might be surprised that a restaurant with a unique historical tradition would have modestly priced items. For instance, a five leaf salad with house dressing, which my companion selected, and a bowl of New England clam chowder, which I ordered, are only $4.95 each. The entrees are equally reasonable: Maryland crab cakes and beer battered cod wrap, which we ordered, are priced at $10.95 each.

Everything was fresh and well prepared—in a home cooked tradition; it was like sitting down at your own dining table with a sense of informality and relaxation. A hard-to-beat combination!

And there were enough clams in the chowder to make it as impressive as the Salty Dog's historical background. The salad was fresh and crisp; the crab cakes truly

"Maryland" in character. The beer battered cod was tasty and memorable. We topped off the meal with key lime pie and coffee.

As we were finishing dessert, Edward Burke and his wife, Carol, who is in charge of the catering service, came over to chat and fill us in on more of the family's details. Their son, Edward Jr. and daughter Denise, following in their father's footsteps, are headed for the law profession, while continuing in the restaurant business. Joseph, the younger son, seems happy just to work in the restaurant; we are not quite sure what his future plans are, but I suspect whatever profession he chooses, he will keep one foot in the restaurant business.

In retrospect, it was fun having a good meal and listening to the lilt of Reggae at the same time. In fact, I wouldn't be surprised if it were true that music that you enjoy while eating aids digestion—no negative associations intended.

If you haven't yet tried The Salty Dog take a spin out that way for a great harbor view as well as a fine meal and excellent drinks. Or if you are planning a party, don't forget the catering services the restaurant offers at equally modest prices. Call and ask for Carol who will be delighted to prepare your special order.

Dining IN THE HAMPTONS

Silvia

1. Butterfly chickens by cutting out the backbones or have butcher do it for you. Trim chickens of excess fat, pin feathers, etc. Rinse clean and pat dry with paper toweling. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Place chickens on a platter large enough to hold them in one layer.

2. Prepare sauce: Place garlic, mustard, honey, lemon juice and pepper in a mixing bowl or workbowl of food processor fitted with steel knife, and stir or process to mix. Gradually add oil in a thin steady stream into bowl or feed tube and whisk or process to mix until mixture is thoroughly blended. Taste to adjust seasoning if necessary.

3. Pour marinade over chickens and spread to coat. Let marinate several hours or up to one day ahead, turning once or twice. Cover loosely with plastic wrap and refrigerate.

4. To Grill: Preheat grill whether charcoal or gas and wait for the coals or briquettes to have an ashen coating before cooking. Using tongs and a spatula, carefully place chickens on grill skin side up. Cover and cook 6-8 minutes. Uncover and cook 8-10 minutes longer. Baste with reserved marinade. Turn chickens over placing them flat on the grill. Repeat covered and uncovered cooking times and continue to baste. Total cooking time is about 40-45 minutes. If chicken looks charred and meat is not cooked through transfer to a roasting pan and place in a 350 oven for 10-12 minutes longer to complete the cooking.

Note: Chickens can also be broiled about 5-6 inches from source of heat using approximate cooking time as a guide.

5. Transfer chickens to a large warm serving platter. Arrange them neck to neck, garnished with a crisp bunch of watercress in-between. Carve the chickens and serve.

SICILIAN CASSATA

The name cassata, derived from the Arab word Quas meaning "large domed bowl," is no doubt Sicily's most famous dessert.

Serves 8-10

1 15-ounce container ricotta cheese
1 cup granulated sugar
4 ounces semi-sweet chocolate, chopped coarsely
2-3 ounces candied fruit, orange, citron
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon Kirsch
1 cup fresh pineapple cubes
Strawberries for garnish

For the mold

1 package Savoiardi (Italian lady fingers)
4-5 tablespoons light rum

1. Drain ricotta in a cheese-cloth lined strainer and allow to drain several hours in the refrigerator. Discard accumulated liquid in bowl.

2. In a clean mixing bowl, mix ricotta with sugar, chocolate, candied fruit, vanilla and Kirsch. Slowly stir the mixture for 4-5 minutes with a large wooden spoon to blend ingredients very well. Add pineapple and stir to mix.

3. Sprinkle a few tablespoons of the rum into a dome-like bowl. Arrange lady fingers in bottom and sides of bowl and sprinkle with a little more liquor.

4. Pour half the ricotta mixture into the mold. Place a layer of lady fingers over the mixture and repeat layering with ricotta and remaining lady fingers. Cover and refrigerate for several hours or overnight.

To serve: Unmold cassata onto a serving plate. Garnish with fresh berries and sprinkle with confectioners sugar.

CORN

Sweet Sue, Silver Queen and Country Gentleman sound more like race horses than varieties of corn. Silly names aside, sweet corn is a nutritionally serious subject. The natural sugar in corn provides energy yet it is low in calories, about eighty per ear, because it's low in fat. An excellent source of dietary fiber, corn helps to lower cholesterol. It also has protease inhibitors, important in the fight against cancer.

Although it's officially a grain, corn is also considered a vegetable, making it a member of two important food groups at the same time. Whole grains, such as corn, are a terrific source of antioxidants, which protect against cancer and heart disease by neutralizing unstable oxygen molecules in the body. Many farmers lost their corn crop last year due to the drought. Fortunately, this year's yield is flourishing. Take advantage and enjoy it now. The season is already in full-swing but some of the best corn comes toward the end of the summer because the corn is in the field longer, getting more solar energy, which allows it to make more sugar.

Freshness is important because the longer picked corn sits around, the sooner the sugar gets converted into starch. Buy your corn directly from a farmstand whenever possible because it will be sweeter and more flavorful than corn sold at the grocery store.

The silk tassel should be soft and silky, if it's not, the corn is already too mature. Corn should be cooked immediately. If that's not possible, keep corn refrigerated and in its husk until you are ready to cook it.

Farmstand Pharmacy

Steam corn to retain the maximum nutrients. Soak the husks in water for a couple of hours and you can steam corn on the grill while it's being roasted. If you prefer boiling it, then only do so for three or four minutes, never allowing it to sit in the water once it's cooked.

LOBSTER, SHRIMP AND CORN CHOWDER

1 lobster (approximately 1 1/2 lbs.)
 1/2 lb. large shrimp
 1 onion, chopped
 2 Tbsp. butter
 2 Tbsp. flour
 1/2 c. white cooking wine
 2 c. red skinned potatoes, diced
 6 ears of corn, kernels removed (approximately 2 cups)
 1 c. heavy cream (or half and half)
 4 c. lobster broth (see below)
 1 tsp. Old Bay or other seafood seasoning Onion, carrot & celery for broth butter

Cook the lobster in boiling water for fifteen minutes.

Cool. Cook shrimp in boiling water until they turn pink, usually just a couple of minutes. Cool.

Remove shells.

Remove lobster meat from shells, cut up and set aside. In a Dutch oven saute cut up onion, carrot & celery in butter. Add the lobster shells to the vegetables with 5 c. of water and seafood seasoning and simmer for forty minutes or so. This is the broth. Strain it and it should yield about 4 c. of broth. Add water if necessary.

Saute chopped onion in the butter until soft, about five minutes. Stir in the flour then whisk in the wine and, eventually, the broth and heavy cream (or half and half). Add the potatoes and cook until they're tender.

Add the lobster pieces, shrimp and corn and cook for ten minutes longer.

SUMMER CORN SALAD

8 ears of corn, kernels removed
 1 red bell pepper, chopped
 1/4 c. diced red onion
 1/4 c. chopped cilantro or parsley
 1/4 c. oil
 3 Tbsp. balsamic vinegar
 Salt and pepper to taste

Mix corn, red bell pepper, red onion and cilantro (or parsley) in a bowl. Run the non-blade edge of a knife down the cleaned cobs to remove the sweet "milk". Mix it with the oil and vinegar and pour over the vegetables.

The Secret To A Longer Drive

As much as the technology has improved the golf club to enhance the distance of a golf ball and the golf ball has become livelier, the proper technique of the golf swing has remained the most important aspect of achieving a long swing.

There are three major sources of power that are required for ultimate contact. The first is the proper coiling of the upper body over the resistance of the lower body in the backswing. To do this properly you must have eighty percent of your body weight loaded inside your right heel. The key checkpoints are to at least have the left shoulder behind the ball and to allow your weight to go beyond the inside of the right foot.

The second power source is the turning of the left hip to initiate the downswing. By doing this you shift the weight back to the left side and create a whiplash effect for the beginning of the upper body movement.

This key concept above was quoted by two of the premier ball strikers of all time Bobby Jones and Ben Hogan.

The third source of power comes into play after the weight shift has occurred with the lower body holding the wrist cocked and then re-cocking the wrist past impact which gives the final thrust of power.

Many golfers mistakenly believe the wrists should release or uncock at or prior to impact. This is the biggest power leak of all and is actually the cause of de-acceleration. One should try to feel the maximum acceleration from the right hip as the arms drop after the weight shifts. By doing so the above whiplash feeling occurs throughout impact. Swinging too hard from the top with your arms and hands slows down the club head speed and shortens the distance of the drive.

Beauty Treatments In Your Own Backyard

In the days before mass-produced skincare products, healing ointments, washes and skin-care products were often made in the kitchen, where everyday ingredients like oatmeal and glycerine were at hand. Combined with herbs and flowers from the garden, they were used to treat all kinds of ailments, from sores and chapped hands to acne and eczema -a gentle, natural, effective alternative to costly chemical skin treatments.

Marigold Rinse is invaluable for the treatment of all kinds of skin conditions. Marigold has been cultivated for centuries for its soothing antiseptic and antifungal action (Henry VII even recommended it as a cure for the plague). Today, it is well worth trying this refreshing rinse for healing minor wounds, soothing eczema and sore skin, and treating complaints like roundworm and athlete's foot. To make: Put 4 oz. of fresh marigold heads or 2 ozs. of dried in a large jug and cover with 1 pint boiling water. Leave until cool and then strain. Add an equal amount of cider vinegar to the rinse if you want to reduce inflammation.

Lavender Wash is wonderful for first aid because it's antiseptic and soothes bites and small burns. You can use it for inflammatory skin conditions and to keep spots at bay too. To make: Cover 4 oz. of fresh lavender flowers or 2 oz. of dried with 1 pint of boiled water and leave to cool. Rinse your face or other areas with it day and night. To make an astringent to combat acne, (Lavender Vinegar), put 1 cup of the above and cover it with an equal amount of white vinegar. Store in a cool, dark place for a week, shaking once a day, then strain and pour into a clean jar or bottle before use.

Cucumber Lotion has a mild bleaching action, much appreciated in Victorian times for its ability to fade freckles. It can also be used to fade blemishes and age spots. To make: Peel half a cucumber and liquidize to obtain the juice. Add an equal amount of glycerine and rosewater and stir well. Use as a hand lotion or facial wash.

Strawberry Sunburn Soother is a time honored way to soothe sunburn. Avoid this remedy if you are allergic to strawberries. To make: Mash 1/2 lb. of overripe strawberries then stir in a pot of plain yogurt with active cultures. Spread the mixture over the skin to cool it.

Wheatgerm oil is your grandmother's answer to anti-ageing creams because it contains vitamin E. Vitamin E is an important anti-oxidant which attacks free radicals responsible for cell-damage, causing wrinkles among other things. It is also useful for treating inflammation and wounds, because it helps heal damaged skin. Try massaging a teaspoon of wheatgerm oil into the complexion at bedtime, then rinse with rosewater to remove any stickiness. Alternatively, add marigold heads to make this a healing lotion. To make: Take 4 tablespoons of fresh marigold heads or 2 tablespoons of dried and put in a jar with 8 tablespoons of wheatgerm oil. Cover and leave to macerate for 3 days, shaking daily before straining into a clean bottle.

Here are some other Quick Tips: 1. Apply slices of fresh pineapple to warts; distilled witch hazel is good for the treatment of acne; cold weak tea makes a soothing wash for sunburn; rub basil leaves on stings to relieve itch; half a teaspoon of sea salt mixed with two tablespoons of oil makes a stimulating scrub for tired skin; white petroleum jelly makes a superb night cream; hold geranium leaves against oily skin to tone and balance it; castor oil may fade liver spots; a little glycerine mixed with a pinch of turmeric powder can help eliminate mouth sores; a teaspoon of sugar mixed with a tablespoon of olive oil softens the hands.

These time honored "recipes" will have you getting back to basics for effective and inexpensive beauty treatments. If you would like to share any of your own natural beauty or health treatments, please e-mail Allison at editorial@ Danspapers.com.

Ellen's Run – A Race For Life

Ellen Hermanson was forty two years old when she died. She was a journalist, an activist, a wife and a mother and a victim of the insidious disease known as breast cancer. In addition, she was an articulate and effective advocate for breast cancer survivors and patients. Ellen's Run, a 5K race/walk will be held in East Hampton this weekend to continue the projects she began—as a celebration of her life not as a memorial to her death. The race is being held here because, although Ellen called New York her home, she often visited her sister Judy here in the Hamptons and found solace on the our beaches especially during the later part of her all-too-brief life.

The Ellen P. Hermanson Foundation is a not-for-profit corporation founded by her sister to help women and their families survive cancer and maintain hope and quality of life during the process. The foundation is continuing Ellen's work by funding projects that provide educational outreach and early detection for under served communities of women, psychological support for breast cancer survivors and their families, and research on pain management.

As a means of funding its various programs, the Foundation will again sponsor Ellen's Run, a 5K race/walk on August 20, beginning at 9 a.m. at East Hampton High School. Preregistered participants check in on "run day" from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Day of race registration from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m., fee is $20. The race is open to men, women and children and prizes will be awarded in various categories including awards for overall winner and top three female and male places, awards for top three female and male walkers, medals for the top three females and males in each category, and prizes for the first place breast cancer survivor donated by McCarver and Moser Jewelers. Call Florence at 631-329-0403 for information on the run or on volunteering. Additional registration forms available at: <http://www.ellensrun.org>.

Past recipients of grants from the proceeds of Ellen's Run include: Ellen's Well* (a weekly free support group for newly diagnosed women and their families, 726-8606-South Fork, 722-5237-North Fork), Southampton Hospital Breast Health Center, East Hampton High School, Shinnecock Indian Health Services, Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, Carol M. Baldwin Breast Center and Callen-Lorde Community Health Center.

The previous evening, August 19, join Honorary Chair Christie Brinkley for an evening of cocktails, hors d'oeuvres, live music and a silent auction from 6-8:30 p.m. at Noah's Ark Project in Bridgehampton. For more information on this event, call 329-0403 or 212-840-0916.

Many organizations focus on funding research for the cure of this disease that claims the lives of 46,000 women a year with an additional 180,000 women being diagnosed within this same time frame. For a woman and her family the scariest four words imaginable are "You have breast cancer". This is one of the few organizations that helps both the patient and their families learn to cope with this life altering proclamation. Three years ago, my mother died of breast cancer and I can recall as if it was yesterday, the hopeless feeling of seeing someone you love slowly fade away and being unable to do anything to relieve their mental or physical suffering. Maintaining a positive attitude (both for the patient and their family) given the circumstances is the epitome of stress. It can be a death sentence that hangs over the entire family. An organization such as this one that helps the entire family heal is a god send.

Statistics state that one in eight women will be diagnosed with breast cancer in their lifetimes and the chances increase with age. If you live on Long Island or within the 10021 zip code in New York, the breast cancer ratio is greater than anywhere else in the entire nation. If you are a woman, a husband, a son, a brother or a father run, walk or volunteer for this important cause that can rob you or your loved ones of health, dignity and finally our most precious gift, life itself.

The Huntting Inn

The largest and most centrally located of the historic inns on Main Street, East Hampton may well be the Huntting Inn, home of The Palm Restaurant.

Built in 1699 for Rev. Nathaniel Huntting, his family and his heirs, little of the original building is still visible from the outside. During the course of its evolution, the gracious old building saw countless renovations to make room for more and more boarders. This may account for the intricate twists and turns in its narrow hallways.

Nathaniel Huntting succeeded Rev. Thomas James, the first minister in East Hampton, who had lived beside Town Pond. As the second minister to hold services in the village, he had been known for his instructive, long-winded sermons, but Rev. Huntting must have had a secret wild side, as he had been fined for having purposely broken windows while attending Harvard College.

Mary Green, Rev. Nathaniel Huntting's wife, and the mother of his ten children, had kept a small shop in the house to supplement her husband's earnings.

Their great-great-grandson, whose name had also been Nathaniel Huntting, owned the building for twelve years before he died in 1867, and had been involved in a lawsuit with Samuel Buell Gardiner of the Brown House across Main Street, a stubborn lawsuit that had been carried as far as the highest courts.

David H. Huntting had surveyed the street in 1833 when the town authorities wanted to make Main Street an even width. At the time residents of the historic buildings used the family woodpile as part of the front fence since it had been a convenient place to unload the wood after having gathered it in the surrounding wooded area.

Most of the families had moved their woodpiles to the back of their houses at the request of the town officials, but Nathaniel Huntting had refused to comply with the road commissioner's request. The dispute went on for quite a while and it seems that Samuel Buell Gardiner and the town authorities case must have finally prevailed, as Main Street is now a wide road from beginning to end.

The house that had been built in 1699 for the second minister in East Hampton has been an inn since Revolutionary times. East Hampton's first Liberty Pole was erected in the middle of Main Street in front of the Huntting and the Gardiner buildings in 1861, six years after a map was published that had included both these estates. A flag was raised and speeches rendered, in the midst of Civil War excitement.

Nine generations of the Huntting family had been born in the original building, before Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Froot bought it in 1939.

Today, the Innkeeper is Linda Calder. The Inn is open year-round, welcomes families with children, offers a smoke-free environment—as well as continental breakfast. Its twenty guest rooms vary in size, each with a private bath, and offer a funky modern-day blending of past and present with a sprinkling of antiques.

The Hampton Jitney conveniently stops outside the charming Inn's picket fence and its intimate lobby serves as a meeting place for dinner guests of The Palm Restaurant, located on the main floor. Off the bar are several other lobby areas that have often served as meeting places for participants in the annual Hampton Film Festival—as well as quiet resting places for guests that may want to meditate on the beauty of the side flower garden.

Orchard Irrigation: Irrigation Industry

The irrigation industry is rapidly changing. There are more people coming to Long Island every day, which means less water for irrigation, and new laws and codes. It is imperative that the irrigation contractor keeps himself or herself educated and up to date. There are many new products on the market to conserve water and to properly water your expensive landscape.

The design of a sprinkler system is very important. There are many things to consider, such as soil conditions, plant material, ground cover, and most importantly, available water, meaning gallons of water per minute and line pressure.

Most people think that all a sprinkler does is wet the lawn. This is not so. How many times have you seen a beautiful home with ugly risers in front of every window, or a rotted stoop of deck, or plants dying because of over-watering? This is why design is so critical. You must have a separation from lawn and shrubs.

The timer is also essential. This is the brain of your system. It does not pay to install a cheap, hard to read, or used controller. Use a quality timer with different programs and start times. A rain sensor is also recommended.

The next part of your system are the control valves. This is the heart of your system. If the valves do not work properly, it will cause many problems, such as zones staying on or off at the wrong times, flooding in some zones and low pressure in others.

Last, but not least, are the sprinkler heads. There are so many different heads on the market, it is hard to know which one is the best. Look at the different heads available. Feel the weight of the head. Is it stainless steel, plastic or brass? Which gives the best warranty? What does it do differently from the others? How big is the seal? How big is the spring? How difficult is it to adjust? Are there interchangeable nozzles and different spray patterns?

For all of you perennial rose lovers, there is also Drip Irrigation. This is a great way to water your flower beds. Drip Irrigation does not spray water but drips it directly on the root zone under the mulch or ground cover to encourage deep root growth. Instead of watering everyday for hours, it allows you to water two or three times a week for two to four hours and you never know it is on.

So now you know a little bit about an irrigation system and how many different parts are involved. As you can see, you have many different choices to make on how to water your property. Good luck on finding a reputable contractor. Ask a lot of questions and get more than one estimate.

It's Our Garden WITH ELIZABETH AND CROW MILLER

Many gardeners fail to take advantage of the second half of summer. Lettuce, always welcome, bolts in hot weather and becomes tough and bitter. Planted in August, it will have the advantage of increasingly cool nights and shorter days, with resulting crispness and sweetness.

You can repeat on the tender little beets of spring, the kind that you eat tops and all. They'll come up quickly in midsummer and, growing more slowly as the days turn cooler, be delicious right through the first half of winter. Beets can take a lot of cold weather.

Spinach is another crop that we are denied in summer, but that grows great when days become shorter and nights nippier. Plant your seeds in sunny rows a 1/2 inch deep if your soil is sandy-loam, a 1/4 inch deep if it is clay. Pick the outside leaves when you harvest spinach. Mulch the plants under straw after the first hard freeze.

Try for a late crop of corn. If you succeed (and I often have) you may have sweet corn well into October. If a frost takes it, what will you have lost? The frozen cornstalks cut down and spread over the bed will provide cover at first, then later, as they decay, nutrition for the soil.

Pre-germinate corn seed, by soaking it overnight, and you can subtract ten days from the time the directions give on the seed packet.

I look forward every fall to the second crop of peas, to be had when the weather is turning brisk. These peas combine beautifully with the tomatoes, onions and peppers that are in season in fall to make very tasty dishes. Sow them in late July or early August.

The strawberry bed is enriched, as well as thinned, by turning under every other row of plants, together with its partly decayed mulch, first going north and south, then east and west. If they are everbearers, follow this treatment with a good drink of liquid organic fertilizer, (fish & seaweed), a generous cupful poured into the center of each plant.

Did you know that this is the best of all possible times to sow pansy seed? Pansies germinate best and grow most easily when there is the widest variation of temperature in the twenty-four hours. Make a little seedbed with a good covering of compost, and rake it smooth. You'll have a rich assortment of well-started little plants to welcome the next spring.

You will find to your great relief that mid to late-summer crops are much less threatened by pests than in the spring. Many of the predators that despoil our gardens will have passed their nuisance period by the time the second crop is sown.

While you are planning a fall harvest, why not help your garden to its own harvest of minerals and mulch for early and rich production next spring? Right now, when the sun is still warm and days are long, is an excellent time to provide for the needs of our soil. We are organic gardeners, remember, who return to the soil all we take from it, plus a bonus for enrichment. Now everything we put into the soil decays quickly, and there is plenty lying around: grass clippings, green and mineral-rich weeds, all may be dug into the soil. This is also the time to sow a cover crop on any rows from which the produce has been removed and nothing is planted immediately to take its place.

Rye can be sown thickly wherever there is an unplanted space. It will come up promptly, grow well, and can be turned under and let decay into the soil. At this season of the year it will disappear almost overnight, giving the soil nutrition and rich humus for the next planting.

So, for both added growing and eating rewards, plus valuable soil-boosting cover plantings, make the most of that good second crop.

EAST END FARMING WITH JOE GERGELA

The Department of Health Services and the Long Island Veterinary Medical Association (LIVMA) has put together a notice regarding the West Nile virus and horses. I am offering it here because I think it is relevant and informative to all of us.

West Nile virus (WNV) is primarily transmitted between birds by mosquitoes, but can occasionally cause disease in horses exposed to infected mosquitoes. Experimental studies have concluded that horses are a dead-end host for West Nile virus, so an infected horse is not a threat to other horses or people in contact with it. Infection does not always cause clinical disease in horses. However, when the virus does cause clinical symptoms in the horse, it can be very serious. Clinical signs are widely variable. Some horses may appear depressed or listless. Some exhibit flu-like symptoms, including fever, which may resolve, then reappear a week later (biphasic). In more severe cases, horses may develop neurological signs, ranging from muscular fasciculation (twitching), ataxia or wobbly drunken-like gait (especially progressive hind limb incoordination), circling, behavioral changes and, in the most extreme cases, convulsions, coma and death. Approximately half of all horses that show more severe neurological signs recover.

At this time, there is no vaccination for West Nile virus. However, stopping the bird-mosquito infection cycle with vector control is the key to protecting horses. The type of mosquito primarily responsible for West Nile virus transmission is the Culex pipiens, which spends its entire life within a range of 1000 yards of its breeding site. Local control of mosquito breeding therefore can be very effective in stopping transmission of this virus. Culex mosquitoes can breed in any stagnant water (puddles, water troughs, discarded tires, bird-baths, stagnant water in manure collection areas, pails, wheelbarrows, gutters, etc.). By reducing the number of breeding areas on and adjacent to your property, you can significantly reduce your horse's exposure to these insects.

Further recommended for West Nile virus control include:

1. Indoor stabling of horses from dusk to dawn. These are the feeding times for female mosquitoes. Male mosquitoes do not bite horses.

2. Consider the use of insecticide sprays and repellents as recommended by your veterinarian.

3. Fly sheets. These may be used when horses are turned out.

The LIVMA recommends vaccinating your horse twice yearly for Eastern and Western encephalitis. Because the vaccine protection is short-lived, two vaccinations - one in the spring before mosquito season and a second six months later will ensure your horse's protection throughout the year. Additional vaccinations are recommended against Rhinopneumonitis and Rabies. The chance of exposure to these diseases represents a greater threat than West Nile virus.

Update information on West Nile virus can be found at the following websites:

POLICE BLOTTER

A car travelling on Lumber Lane in Bridgehampton chose a different path and traversed the front lawn of an unsuspecting resident. The vehement vehicle destroyed a stockade fence and was finally stopped by the front porch. Before the police could arrive, the motorist added insult to injury by backing across the flower bed and leaving.

* * *

A creative criminal decided to rearrange the marquee on the East Hampton Cinema. The wordsmith managed to use the existing letters to spell out some obscenities. The signage was soon fixed by the theater's manager.

* * *

Also in East Hampton, Cecilia Acuna was strolling along Two Holes of Water Road, when a man jumped out of his car, stark naked, and made obscene gestures at her. Ms. Acuna did not appreciate the gestures and reported the matter to the police.

* * *

Sheila Kalnick of Manhattan was wearing her $2,400 leather jacket on Main Street in East Hampton, when she somehow lost it. Police have a description of the missing jacket and are searching the area.

* * *

Southampton Town Police stopped Brian Rabb, 35, of Patchogue on Scuttlehole Road in Bridgehampton for driving on the shoulder and passing in a no-passing zone. When asked to take a sobriety test, he took the clever approach of saying, "Why should I? I know I'm drunk." Alrighty then, he was arrested for driving while intoxicated and held overnight.

* * *

In Wainscott, somebody apparently about to get married took the concept of "something borrowed" a little too far. Hampton Bride, a shop specializing in discount wedding dresses, reported the theft of 150 wedding dresses reportedly worth $50,000.

* * *

A bicyclist riding on Montauk Highway in East Hampton allegedly rode in front of a passing motorist. Francisco Aquilar-Dominges, 49, who gave Hren's Nursery as his address, allegedly began accosting the motorist in Spanish. The driver then responded, also in Spanish at which point Aquilar-Dominges allegedly threatened him with pruning shears. The cyclist was charged with menacing and released on $100 bail.

* * *

The teller at the drive-up window of the Suffolk County National Bank, watched through the teller window as the driver of a blue Chevrolet backed into his car and drove off.

* * *

A Springs resident awoke the morning after a big party was held at his home to find that more guests had arrived after he retired for the evening and had imbibed his $600 bottle of Dom Perignon as well as a $70 bottle of Pierre Jolet and a $50 bottle of Moet. The annoyed host called the police to report the unauthorized consumption of his expensive liquor. He probably shouldn't have, as at the age of 20, he was not legally allowed to consume, much less serve alcohol. Upon arrival the police determined that the theft was a civil matter, and did not charge the young man.

Dan's LETTERS

17TH CENTURY THINKING?

Dear Dan,

Jerry Cimisi's polemic about "Vaccine Controversy" represents some of the best 17th century thinking I've ever encountered. In it, he repeats every ludicrous charge and objection ever made by the tiny minority of quacks and fanatics who oppose vaccinations, ANY vaccinations. Indeed, he goes so far as to strongly suggest that vaccinations are the cause of AIDS. How ignorant!

It was not so long ago that quarantine notices were posted on houses with residents who had measles, mumps, scarlet fever, whooping cough, diphtheria and small pox, when schools and public swimming pools had to be closed because of deadly epidemics. And remember those pictures of long lines of iron lungs, occupied by polio victims who couldn't breath on their own, to say nothing of the countless child deaths from these diseases and the crippling effects on polio victims who survived? Why has deadly small pox been wiped out, and why do words like diphtheria and scarlet fever draw only blank stares from today's kids?

The answer, as anyone with common sense knows, is vaccination, one of the greatest boons ever to medicine. There is simply no room for debate. Even now, the best hope for stemming the AIDS epidemic is a vaccine, which medical researchers are working to develop. News reports just last week even talked about the possibility of a vaccine for Alzheimer's Disease.

Jerry Cimisi has every Constitutional right to risk his kids' health by withholding vaccinations from them. But he has no right—none whatsoever—to send them, unvaccinated, to public schools, which until vaccines came along were breeding grounds for contagious diseases.

I find it astonishing that in the first year of the 21st century, a fine publication like Dan's Papers would publish such a dangerously misleading and medically illiterate diatribe.

Leon Jaroff
East Hampton

THE BEAUTIES OUT HERE

Dear Dan,

As a very frequent visitor to the Hamptons, I have read Dan's Papers for the past dozen years. I bring the magazine back to Palm Beach after each stay. In between, Jimmy from Quogue East Realty will send me issues to keep me posted.

In your June 2000 issue, on page 53, there was a paragraph about beautiful visitors to the Hamptons such as Cheryl Tiegs, Elle, Whitney Houston, Christie Brinkley, B. Smith, Martha Stewart, and Kim Basinger, but nothing was said about the beauties that call the Hamptons their home. One such person is Courtney Kate Cumisky, co-owner of Quogue East Realty. She outshines all of the women mentioned above. Comments about Courtney made by local citizens include, "Courtney looks like Christie Brinkley." In my opinion, Christie looks like Courtney, except that Courtney is more beautiful and much younger. You have so many beautiful female residents in the Hamptons that I believe space should be given for the "home folks."

Palm Beach, Florida

THEY LOVE LOVE JANIS

Dear Dan,

On Saturday, July 22, we had the wonderful opportunity to see Love, Janis at the Bay Street Theater in Sag Harbor. We had no idea what a treat we were in for!

Catherine Curtin, as the private Janis, and Cathy Richardson, as the public Janis, were absolutely spectacular. They were able to tell the audience who Janis Joplin really was, in a way that was both humorous and moving. Perhaps the most exciting aspect of the performance was the delivery of the music of Janis! Ms. Richardson is to be commended on her powerful delivery of every song. She was even able to get the crowd to engage in an a cappella rendition of "Mercedes Benz."

Thank you for a wonderful night at the theater—we look forward to seeing it "off-Broadway."

For Your Party: Tattoos

Heard of TattooParty yet? If not, you will soon. They have cornered the market on a hip new trend that has been literally transforming events from Manhattan to Montauk.

Tattooing and other forms of permanent body art have been hot. Take to any NYC street and you'll pass someone who has used body art to create their unique look. Even the American Museum of Natural History has chronicled the body art culture. But historic trends have gotten a modern facelift-led by companies like infusion, it is now temporary art defining style in movies and fashion.

TattooParty has been at the forefront of the temporary body art trend and now brings it to an exciting new venue-your party. Hands down, savvy Gothamites know how to throw a party, and temporary body art is fast becoming this set's newest darling. From homegrown backyard pool parties to down-and-dirty corporate events, party entertainment is quite a serious matter. Next to those exotic edibles and breakdancing duos, TattooParty offers guests something they can officially take home.

With the help of semi-permanent inks developed specifically for body art, these artists quickly work a room; grown-up favorites include ancient Henna artwork and airbrushing. Guests can be dramatic, tame, whatever! The draw: these designs look completely real.

And for the younger, excitable set: parents who find their children have gotten their last ha-has from Jingles the Clown have called on the services of temporary body artists. And of course, TattooParty knows to bring their favorites (Pokemon, Elmo, X-men). Body artists can also disguise your child as a tiger, a zebra- or even their former favorite, Jingles.

TALON AIR, INC.

We go when you say so

Talon Air, Inc. is a full-service "On Demand" air charter carrier. We utilize state-of-the-art twin engine aircraft, flying at altitudes above most weather conditions, in full air conditioned comfort. Our pilots are highly trained professionals. All flights are conducted with two pilots on board at all times. All of our maintenance work is performed by professional mechanics whose sole interest is the safety of our passengers.

We land at almost any remote location as well as most large cities in the Northeast. We regularly fly to Washington D.C., Albany, Boston, Cape Cod, Martha's Vineyard, Nantucket, Maine and all of the Hamptons.

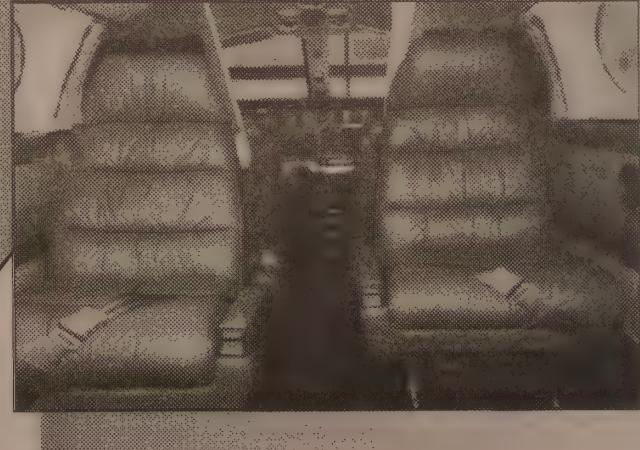

In the immediate NYC area, we service La Guardia, Westchester, Teterboro and Caldwell airports.

We specialize in providing service to locations not broadly served by the airlines for such diverse purposes as camp visits, college travel, and business trips for executives needing to visit out-of-the-way locations or number of cities in one day.

Our rates are very competitive. Only $550 per hour, and $95 for each waiting hour on the ground.

Call today at 516.848.0500 to reach our Executive Offices.

Now You Can Enjoy Beef Healthfully!

We at the Half Circle Ranch want to help you continue to enjoy beef healthfully! To do so, we're going to great lengths to provide genetically lean, naturally fed, individually pampered beef which is simply delicious.

Two secrets to our success are (1) a pollution-free, high mountain setting and (2) a remarkable, new, genetically-lean breed of cattle called "Piedmontese."

PIEDMONTSE BEEF

Imagine a meat that looks like beef, cooks like beef and tastes like the very best beef, yet with fat and cholesterol content less than poultry or flounder. Now there is such a meat, and it is beef: Half Circle Pride Piedmontese Beef.

NATURALLY FED

In our beautiful, pollution-free, high mountain setting, our cattle enjoy

Half Circle Pride Beef is certified organic by the OCIA (Organic Crop Improvement Association.)

CHEMICAL FREE

No growth stimulants, biological shots or other potentially harmful shots are administered. If at any time during an animal's life even a medical shot becomes necessary, Half Circle Ranch will sell the beef animal at a local auction as commercial livestock and thereby remove it from the ranch.

PAMPERED HERD

This herd is truly premium quality, both individually and collectively.

RICHLY DELICIOUS

Chefs and restaurant goers who have prepared and sampled Piedmontese beef rave at the tenderness and flavor. Independent, scientifically administered studies agree on both points, even proving by precise shearing force measurements that Piedmontese steak is easier to cut. And in spite of remarkably low fat and marbling content, the beef is very juicy and extremely delicious.
